Violence Flares Over Integration; 11 Under Arrest

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Temperamental teen-agers — running in packs of 100 and 200—broke the peaceful mixing of the races in New Orleans public schools Tuesday.

Forays by youngsters of both sexes melted away from the nervous feet of police horses in an abortive attempt to break police lines around McDonogh No. 19 school.

Police arrested at least 11 persons, including a blonde girl who bit the hand of an arresting officer, and a deputy sheriff from neighboring St. Bernard Parish.

The teen-agers put into action the better-controlled anger of parents who shouted derisively as four 6-year-old Negro girls entered two white schools for their second day of integrated education.

Police Seal Off Area

At William Frantz School, the other building integrated, police arrested a man for carrying a concealed weapon. The weapon turned out to be a toy pistol.

Police massed 125 patrolmen and mounted officers around McDonogh and, after the first attempt to crack their lines, sealed off an area two blocks around the three-story gray building. They ranged for blocks around the neighborhood.

Thirty minutes later, roving police broke up a marching group of 200 placard and flag-carrying white teen-agers 10 blocks from the school, turning the procession toward downtown New Orleans.

The police meant business. Police Maj. Adolph Mayerhaffer said "We'll be here as long as is necessary."

School Attendance Light

His superior, Police Supt. Joseph Giarrusso, emphasized the police mission was solely to maintain order.

Integration was a two-day-old fact in New Orleans but education just about took a holiday. Nearly all schools reported light attendance and the two integrated schools had a joint total of about two dozen white students.

Three of the four Negro pupils entered McDonogh.

Police investigated reports of a bomb planted at the home of U.S. District Judge J. Skelly Wright, the jurist who signed the original integration order last May, it seemed to be false.

KIDNAP VICTIM — Rosilee O'Connell, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad O'Connell, Gilbert, Minn., is being sought by police. The Rev Lawrence Dudink, 47, chaplain at St. Mary's Hospital in Superior, Wis., has been charged with kidnaping the girl. The priest and the girl, who was a patient at the hospital, have been missing since Nov. 8. An FBI spokesman said his agency hasn't entered the case yet. (AP Photofax)

Ribicoff Says Cabinet Spot Not Discussed

Conn. Governor, Kennedy Confer For Two Hours

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy, reportedly considering Republicans for some high posts, conferred Tuesday with a Democrat prominently mentioned for a Cabinet appointment.

The Democrat is an old, close friend, Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut. He lunched with Kennedy, played golf with him and lost, and conferred with him for two hours.

But he told reporters they talked about "some of the responsibilities and obligations of the presidency beginning in January" —not a Cabinet spot for the governor.

Mentioned For Attorney General

Ribicoff's name figures frequently in speculation over Kennedy's choice for attorney general. But the governor said: "I ask for no job nor do I seek any. I never have."

Did that mean he would decline one? Ribicoff grinned and replied that it would be foolish of him to make any statement until one was proferred.

"I would say," he said, "that at this time it would be proper to say none was proffered."

The governor declined at a news conference to go into any details about the presidential responsibilities and obligations he and Kennedy covered. But he did say that the organization, or reorganization, of the Justice Department—over which the attorney general presides—was not one of the subjects that came up.

Kennedy, Dulles Meet Friday

Kennedy's next conference here will be on Friday with Allen Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency. He will give Kennedy a two-hour briefing, his fourth since the Massachusetts Senator became the Democratic presidential nominee, on problems confronting the nation around the world.

Ribicoff's arrival at the Kennedy vacation retreat on the Atlantic shore coincided with indications that Kennedy definitely sounded out Vice President Richard M. Nixon on the possibility of bringing Republicans into a few top spots in a Democratic administration.

Soviet Offers Demo Regime Talks In 1961

Wadsworth Assails Zorin Interference In American Affairs

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union expressed willingness Tuesday night to enter into negotiations with the new U.S. administration of John F. Kennedy in an effort to break the East-West disarmament deadlock.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian A. Zorin made the offer before the U.N. General Assembly's Political Committee, where he clashed with U.S. Delegate James J. Wadsworth — an appointee of the Eisenhower Administration.

Th clash came after Zorin threw his countrys' support behind a last ditch compromise resolution submitted by India's Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon, and co-sponsored by a group of smaller nations.

Wadsworth challenged Zorin to accept amendments to the resolution that would make it more of a balance between rival East-West proposals. He did not spell them out in detail.

Zorin Shuns Idea

But Zorin rejected the idea of any amendments, saying the United States wants to destroy the resolution and establish "loopholes that would enable it to squirm out of agreement on general and complete disarmament."

The Soviet delegate said that in view of Wadsworth's position his country would look forward to a spring session of the assembly on disarmament, to be attended by heads of states. The Soviet Union has expressed a desire that the assembly be held in Europe or the Soviet Union.

Zorin voiced hope the Kennedy administration would "seriously ponder this" and at the spring session take steps to make agreement on disarmament possible.

Wadsworth replied that "it ill behooves Mr. Zorin to talk about what the position of the next U.S. government might be."

The committee adjourned without taking any vote.

U.S. Charges Interference

Wadsworth declared he would not take time to reply to Zorins' "totally unjustified interference in the internal affairs of the United States.'

Wadsworth challenged Zorin to agree to amendments to the Indian resolution that would make its language "explicit and not vague."

Zorin said the resolution presented by Menon, although it had shortcomings, presented the best hope for U.N. progress on disarmament.

The new resolution would have the United Nations approve specific directives as the basis for agreement on general and complete disarmament under effective international control.

They call for:

1. Elimination of armed forces, armaments and arms production.
2. Total prohibition of manufacture and use of nuclear, bacteriological and chemical weapons of warfare.
3. Elimination of all existing establishments and training institutions for military purposes.
4. Elimination of military bases on national and foreign territories, including those equippped as weapons-launching sites.
5. Maintenance of defense forces

"K" Might Free Fliers In Peace Bid To Kennedy

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic dispatches from behind the Iron Curtain reported Tuesday that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev may be planning to release two American RB47 fliers early in 1961 as a "peace offering" to President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The reports were in guarded language and did not cite concrete evidence but said there is "reason to believe" Moscow at least is considering releasing the two Americans whose RB47 reconnaissance plane was shot down in the Arctic July 1.

Khrushchev was reported anxious to establish friendly relations with Kennedy as shown by his quick cable of congratulations and the warmth with which the Soviet press and radio reported news of Kennedy's election.

Tuesday's reports stressed that no final decision appears to have been taken. The sources first reported more than a month ago there were strong indications in Moscow of an indefinite delay in the trial of the two Americans on espionage charges.

(The West Berlin newspaper Telegraph reported Tuesday rumors in Moscow that U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers might be released, but there was no mention of this in the diplomatic reports received here thus far.)

The two RB47 fliers in Soviet custody are Capt. Freeman B. Olmstead, the co-pilot, 24, of Elmira, N.Y., and Capt. John R. McCone, 28, the navigator, of Tonganoxie, Okla. They have refused to admit they were on anything other than a weather reconnaissance mission as claimed by the United States.

Four men were killed when the RB47 was shot down by Russian fighter planes but only one body was recovered, that of Capt. Willard G. Palm of Oak Ridge, Tenn., which was returned to the United States for burial.

Tax Consolation

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Planning Department has offered this morsel of consolation to Maryland taxpayers: their tax payments are a little below the national average per $1,000 of personal income.

The department said taxes collected by state and local subdivisions in 1959 amounted to $78.73 per $1,000 of personal income, 7.3 per cent less than the national average.

Owner Of Firm, Secretary Slain

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — The owner of a Detroit business firm and his newly married secretary were found shot to death in his office Tuesday.

The bodies of Abraham Siegel, 63, and Mrs. Dolores S. Pfetzing, 30, were found face-down on the floor of Siegel's office in the Siegel Iron and Metal Co. here.

The Wayne County medical examiner said each had been shot once in the back of the head.

The bodies were discovered by Carl Peques, 46, a customer.

Mrs. Pfetzing's housekeeper, Mae Haney, said the secretary was married six months ago to Henry Pfetzing, chief engineer for a tool designing firm.

Pfetzing left Sunday on a business trip to California, Mrs. Haney said, and is due back Friday.

Ike Plans Steps To Trim Losses In Deals Abroad

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower Tuesday approved a decision ordering government departments and agencies to take new action to reduce the nation's mounting deficit in balance of payments.

The President announced he would issue a special new directive on this problem within the next 48 hours.

Eisenhower made known his decision after a 2½ hour conference at his vacation headquarters with his Secretaries of the Treasury and Defense.

"The deficit for 1960 now looks as if it could possibly approach last year's figures," said Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson after the meeting.

In 1959 this deficit totalled some $3.8 billion. The figure represents the gap between the amount of money the United States earns in overseas transactions and the amount it spends.

This gap is one of the key reasons there has been an increasing flow of gold out of the United States in the past two years.

Eisenhower did not spell out the action he would direct government departments and agencies to adopt to ease the problem. He said he would issue "a paper" outlining the problem.

"It will contain directives to the government departments and agencies for action which they can take within the sphere of U.S. governmental activity to contribute to the reduction of the deficit in our balance of payments," Anderson said.

Eisenhower made it clear he expects the wealthy West German government to help stem the outflow of U. S. gold by picking up some of the financial burden the United States has been carrying to help free nations.

Anderson, accompanied by Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon, will visit the West German capital next week to discuss German aid contributions to undeveloped lands.

The two administration leaders also plan to make one-day stops in Paris and London en route home to discuss financial problems with the French and British governments.

French Police Rush To Algiers Amid Plot Talk

ALGIERS (AP) — The government sped 1,100 trained riot policemen from France to Algeria Tuesday as this city was flooded with talk of a new plot against President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian policies.

The police will reinforce a riot squad of 5,000 already stationed in this city where a 1958 settlers' uprising brought down the Fourth French Republic and boosted De Gaulle to power.

On Jan. 24 of this year, European settlers staged a new uprising. This one was prompted by disillusionment with De Gaulle because he had offered Algeria's Moslems a chance to work out their own political future.

Now there is a reviving element of intrigue heightened by signs that De Gaulle is readying a new move to end the rebellion.

De Gaulle is expected soon to announce a referendum in France —which he will almost surely win —on his new policy of an Algeria administered by Algerians.

Illness Of Liz Is Diagnosed As Meningism

LONDON (AP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor's splitting headaches were diagnosed Tuesday night as resulting from a virus infection that usually occurs among children without serious effects.

It is called meningism and in the fevered Miss Taylor's case has been extremely painful.

Her doctors said the infection combined with abscessed teeth touched off the piercing head pains that forced the 28-year-old beauty to return to the hospital Sunday night in agony.

The doctors emphasized that meningism is not to be confused with meningitis.

"It is not a virus infection of the meninges, which are the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord," said a spokesman for one of the attending physicians, Dr. Carl Goldman. "That would be meningitis," he added.

A leading British medical dictionary definies meningism as "a condition of irritation of the brain or spinal cord in which the symptoms simulate a meningitis but in which no actual inflammation of these membranes is present."

The spokesman for Goldman said meningism "is more frequently encountered in children than in adults and is of no consequence."

After examining Miss Taylor, Goldman said "there is no doubt now that she has this virus infection, aggravated by bad teeth which have been causing a lot of trouble."

He said it would be up to Miss Taylor's dentist to determine whether her teeth will have to be extracted.

The question of meningitis arose Sunday when the actress, clutching her head in pain, was rushed to the exclusive London Clinic from her hotel suite.

Ambulance attendants said they thought Miss Taylor showed surface symptoms of meningitis.

But the doctors now have definitely ruled out this disease.

Cuban Chief Justice's Defection Reported

HAVANA (AP)—The president of Cubas' Supreme Court, Dr. Emilio Menendez, took asylum Tuesday in the Argentine embassy, it was learned from authoritative sources.

It was reported another member of Cuba's highest court, Jose Morell Romero, took asylum in the Mexican embassy.

The reasons for defections of the high-ranking magistrates were not known immediately. Since early this year, however, a number of attorneys and members of the bench have privately expressed dissatisfaction with the juridical processes under the Castro regime.

They have been especially critical of the treatment said to have been given another magistrate, Elio Alvarez, when he was in a local prison. Alvarez, now exiled in the United States, was reported brutally beaten by Castro guards.

French Budget Adopted

PARIS (AP)—The National Assembly has adopted a 1961 budget of 69.34 billion francs—nearly $14 billion.

Chicago Girl, 7, Flees Unharmed From Kidnaper

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago had its second girl abduction in four days Tuesday, but the latest target escaped unharmed as her assailant attempted to rip off her clothing in a forest preserve northwest of the city.

Police sought to determine if the latest snatching was linked with the slaying Saturday of Gloria Kowalewicz, 9, or the still unsolved killings of three Chicago boys five years ago.

The latest victim, Peggy McCarthy, 7, was pulled into a car near her home on the northwest side by a man who drove up and asked her for directions.

The abductor, described as a slightly built man of about 34 wearing a brown jacket and blue jeans, drove her to a parking lot in the Robinson Woods forest preserve and attempted to disrobe her.

The girl, however, slipped out of his grasp and ran to a highway where she was spotted by a cab driver.

Crash Of Navy Plane Probed

MANILA (AP) — An inquiry board of senior U.S. Navy officers was set up Tuesday to seek the cause of a plane crash that killed Rear Adm. Arthur F. Spring, his wife, and four military men.

The death toll reached 10 when a U.S. Marine and three Philippine policemen died in the crash of a helicopter sent out to look for the missing plane.

Rear Adm. Joseph M. Carson, commander of U.S. Naval forces in the Philippines, designated Capt. Eugene Maher as acting commander of Subic base—the installation Spring commanded.

The twin-engine Albatross amphibian, a Navy patrol plane, had been taking the Springs back to Subic from a military dinner-dance in Manila when it flew into the side of a mountain.

Wreckage was found 2,700 feet up Mount Mariveles, overlooking Subic Bay.

A-Sub Armed With 16 Nuclear Missiles Sails

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—The Navy sent the nuclear-powered submarine George Washington into the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday armed with 16 thermonuclear-tipped missiles. The $110 million sub, carrying the most destructive war force in the history of man, opened a new era in warfare.

Before the powerful 380-foot sub slipped beneath the water, President Eisenhower, vacationing at Augusta, Ga., said:

"The George Washington and her following sister ships possess a power and relative invulnerability which will make suicidal any attempt by an aggressor to attack the free world by surprise."

The subs, he said, "will perform a service to world peace worthy of the great American names they bear."

Capt. James B. Osborn, 42, of Stockton, Mo., skipper of the vessel, stood on the conning tower, calmly puffing a cigar as he directed the big sub down the Cooper River in calm waters.

About 65 miles from Charleston, the first Polaris missile submarine to be deployed by the Navy began to submerge. Her periscopes and antenna cut a wake briefly under the bright November sunshine, then she was down.

Capt. Osborn said the vessel will "go to the dive area, submerge and stay down until we come back."

Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, told the crew of 100 in a radio message they will have proved the deterrent value of their task only "if the need to fire your missiles never arises."

He added that if the need to fire should arise, "your ship and the missiles it carries will contribute to the salvation of civilization, for you man the most powerful weapons system ever devised."

The Navy has said the 16 Polaris missiles in the George Washington equal in destructive power all of the bombs dropped during World War II.

Atlas Capsule Is Recovered

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Air Force fired an Atlas missile 5,000 miles Tuesday and recovered a data capsule that ejected from its nose cone and parachuted into the sea.

Later, a Mace-B guided missile was launched on a 1,000-mile test flight after standing on its pad in a "hot hold" ready-to-fire status for more than 31 hours.

The Atlas thundered to a bulls-eye off the South Atlantic island of Ascension, covering the distance in 25 minutes at a peak speed of more than 17,000 miles an hour.

The 30-inch cylindrical capsule plunked into the water and two hours later was retrieved by the ocean range vessel Timber Hitch.

The capsule was crammed with instruments and a tiny tape recorder to determine how the 1½ ton cone survived the jolting journey. The cone was coated with improved materials designed to afford better protection for hydrogen warheads carried on operational Atlases like those now stationed at bases in California and Wyoming.

Half Of States Will Gain Or Lose Seats In House Because Of Population Shifts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Final results of the 1960 census were made public Tuesday by the Commerce Department, which said half of the 50 states will gain or lose seats in the House of Representatives because of population shifts.

Each state which picks up or loses House seats also will gain or lose the same number of votes in the Electoral College, which formally selects the president. Each state's vote in the electoral college is the sum of its Senate and House members.

The 1960 presidential vote won't be affected. The changes will not go into effect until the congressional elections of November 1962.

On the basis of final tabulations, the department said the 50 states had a population of 179,323,175 on April 1—the date of the house-to-house census. This represented a gain of 18.5 per cent over the 1950 total of 151,325,798.

The count did not include Americans stationed or living abroad, such as servicemen and dependents, embassy personnel, and private businessmen. If these were added, officials said, the total would exceed 180 million.

The principal purpose of the once-a-decade census is to determine how many House seats, and electoral votes, each state shall have. These are allotted according to population.

On the basis of the 1960 count, House seats will be reapportioned starting with the 88th Congress which will be elected in November 1962.

California will be the biggest gainer in the realignment, picking up eight seats. Florida will gain four seats and the following states will gain one each: Arizona, Hawaii, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas.

Pennsylvania will lose three seats. New York, Massachusetts and Arkansas will lose two each. Dropping one seat apiece will be Alabama, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Nebraska and West Virginia.

The number of losses exceeds the number of gains because the House currently has 437 members instead of the usual 435. Two extra seats were granted to Alaska and Hawaii after they obtained statehood. The number will revert to 435 after the reapportionment.

A-Spy Completes Term; Future Plans Unrevealed

NEW YORK (AP)—A convicted atom bomb spy for Russia has completed his term in prison and will step out onto the streets of New York Wednesday as a free man.

He is David Greenglass, 38, whose testimony in 1951 helped send his sister, Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg, and her husband, Julius, to death in the Sing Sing Prison electric chair for their part in the spy plot.

What lies ahead for Greenglass?

Does he have the promise of a job? Does he intend to stay in the United States?

If officials know, they are not saying.

Greenglass, who joined in turning the nations' most guarded secret over to the Soviets, then made a clean breast of it in court, has not indicated publicly.

He is an American citizen and so there is no possibility of deportation.

Greenglass served his term in the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., and was transferred to the Federal House of Detention here last weekend.

He is scheduled to walk out of the House of Detention at 8 a.m. for whatever future lies ahead.

He has a wife, Ruth, and two children.

Greenglass was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Irving R. Kaufman on April 6, 1951, to 15 years. His release after serving 9½ years stems from good behavior in prison.

Kaufman sentenced the Rosenbergs to death and committed Morton Sobell, a fourth defendant, to 30 years. Sobell still is in prison. The Rosenbergs and Sobell had pleaded innocent.

Owner Of Firm, Secretary Slain

DETROIT, Mich. (AP) — The owner of a Detroit business firm and his newly married secretary were found shot to death in his office Tuesday.

The bodies of Abraham Siegel, 63, and Mrs. Dolores S. Pfetzing, 30, were found face-down on the floor of Siegel's office in the Siegel Iron and Metal Co. here.

The Wayne County medical examiner said each had been shot once in the back of the head.

The bodies were discovered by Carl Peques, 46, a customer.

Mrs. Pfetzing's housekeeper, Mae Haney, said the secretary was married six months ago to Henry Pfetzing, chief engineer for a tool designing firm.

Pfetzing left Sunday on a business trip to California, Mrs. Haney said, and is due back Friday.

Ike Plans Steps To Trim Losses In Deals Abroad

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower Tuesday approved a decision ordering government departments and agencies to take new action to reduce the nation's mounting deficit in balance of payments.

The President announced he would issue a special new directive on this problem within the next 48 hours.

Eisenhower made known his decision after a 2½ hour conference at his vacation headquarters with his Secretaries of the Treasury and Defense.

"The deficit for 1960 now looks as if it could possibly approach last year's figures," said Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson after the meeting.

In 1959 this deficit totalled some $3.8 billion. The figure represents the gap between the amount of money the United States earns in overseas transactions and the amount it spends.

This gap is one of the key reasons there has been an increasing flow of gold out of the United States in the past two years.

Eisenhower did not spell out the action he would direct government departments and agencies to adopt to ease the problem. He said he would issue "a paper" outlining the problem.

"It will contain directives to the government departments and agencies for action which they can take within the sphere of U.S. governmental activity to contribute to the reduction of the deficit in our balance of payments," Anderson said.

Eisenhower made it clear he expects the wealthy West German government to help stem the outflow of U. S. gold by picking up some of the financial burden the United States has been carrying to help free nations.

Anderson, accompanied by Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon, will visit the West German capital next week to discuss German aid contributions to undeveloped lands.

The two administration leaders also plan to make one-day stops in Paris and London en route home to discuss financial problems with the French and British governments.

French Police Rush To Algiers Amid Plot Talk

ALGIERS (AP) — The government sped 1,100 trained riot policemen from France to Algeria Tuesday as this city was flooded with talk of a new plot against President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian policies.

The police will reinforce a riot squad of 5,000 already stationed in this city where a 1958 settlers' uprising brought down the Fourth French Republic and boosted De Gaulle to power.

On Jan. 24 of this year, European settlers staged a new uprising. This one was prompted by disillusionment with De Gaulle because he had offered Algeria's Moslems a chance to work out their own political future.

Now there is a reviving element of intrigue heightened by signs that De Gaulle is readying a new move to end the rebellion.

De Gaulle is expected soon to announce a referendum in France —which he will almost surely win —on his new policy of an Algeria administered by Algerians.

Illness Of Liz Is Diagnosed As Meningism

LONDON (AP)—Actress Elizabeth Taylor's splitting headaches were diagnosed Tuesday night as resulting from a virus infection that usually occurs among children without serious effects.

It is called meningism and in the fevered Miss Taylor's case has been extremely painful.

Her doctors said the infection combined with abscessed teeth touched off the piercing head pains that forced the 28-year-old beauty to return to the hospital Sunday night in agony.

The doctors emphasized that meningism is not to be confused with meningitis.

"It is not a virus infection of the meninges, which are the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord," said a spokesman for one of the attending physicians, Dr. Carl Goldman. "That would be meningitis," he added.

A leading British medical dictionary definies meningism as "a condition of irritation of the brain or spinal cord in which the symptoms simulate a meningitis but in which no actual inflammation of these membranes is present."

The spokesman for Goldman said meningism "is more frequently encountered in children than in adults and is of no consequence."

After examining Miss Taylor, Goldman said "there is no doubt now that she has this virus infection, aggravated by bad teeth which have been causing a lot of trouble."

He said it would be up to Miss Taylor's dentist to determine whether her teeth will have to be extracted.

The question of meningitis arose Sunday when the actress, clutching her head in pain, was rushed to the exclusive London Clinic from her hotel suite.

Ambulance attendants said they thought Miss Taylor showed surface symptoms of meningitis.

But the doctors now have definitely ruled out this disease.

Cuban Chief Justice's Defection Reported

HAVANA (AP)—The president of Cubas' Supreme Court, Dr. Emilio Menendez, took asylum Tuesday in the Argentine embassy, it was learned from authoritative sources.

It was reported another member of Cuba's highest court, Jose Morell Romero, took asylum in the Mexican embassy.

The reasons for defections of the high-ranking magistrates were not known immediately. Since early this year, however, a number of attorneys and members of the bench have privately expressed dissatisfaction with the juridical processes under the Castro regime.

They have been especially critical of the treatment said to have been given another magistrate, Elio Alvarez, when he was in a local prison. Alvarez, now exiled in the United States, was reported brutally beaten by Castro guards.

Chicago Girl, 7, Flees Unharmed From Kidnaper

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago had its second girl abduction in four days Tuesday, but the latest target escaped unharmed as her assailant attempted to rip off her clothing in a forest preserve northwest of the city.

Police sought to determine if the latest snatching was linked with the slaying Saturday of Gloria Kowalewicz, 9, or the still unsolved killings of three Chicago boys five years ago.

The latest victim, Peggy McCarthy, 7, was pulled into a car near her home on the northwest side by a man who drove up and asked her for directions.

The abductor, described as a slightly built man of about 34 wearing a brown jacket and blue jeans, drove her to a parking lot in the Robinson Woods forest preserve and attempted to disrobe her.

The girl, however, slipped out of his grasp and ran to a highway where she was spotted by a cab driver.

Crash Of Navy Plane Probed

MANILA (AP) — An inquiry board of senior U.S. Navy officers was set up Tuesday to seek the cause of a plane crash that killed Rear Adm. Arthur F. Spring, his wife, and four military men.

The death toll reached 10 when a U.S. Marine and three Philippine policemen died in the crash of a helicopter sent out to look for the missing plane.

Rear Adm. Joseph M. Carson, commander of U.S. Naval forces in the Philippines, designated Capt. Eugene Maher as acting commander of Subic base—the installation Spring commanded.

The twin-engine Albatross amphibian, a Navy patrol plane, had been taking the Springs back to Subic from a military dinner-dance in Manila when it flew into the side of a mountain.

Wreckage was found 2,700 feet up Mount Mariveles, overlooking Subic Bay.

A-Sub Armed With 16 Nuclear Missiles Sails

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)— The Navy sent the nuclear-powered submarine George Washington into the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday armed with 16 thermonuclear-tipped missiles. The $110 million sub, carrying the most destructive war force in the history of man, opened a new era in warfare.

Before the powerful 380-foot sub slipped beneath the water, President Eisenhower, vacationing at Augusta, Ga., said:

"The George Washington and her following sister ships possess a power and relative invulnerability which will make suicidal any attempt by an aggressor to attack the free world by surprise."

The subs, he said, "will perform a service to world peace worthy of the great American names they bear."

Capt. James B. Osborn, 42, of Stockton, Mo., skipper of the vessel, stood on the conning tower, calmly puffing a cigar as he directed the big sub down the Cooper River in calm waters.

About 65 miles from Charleston, the first Polaris missile submarine to be deployed by the Navy began to submerge. Her periscopes and antenna cut a wake briefly under the bright November sunshine, then she was down.

Capt. Osborn said the vessel will "go to the dive area, submerge and stay down until we come back."

Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, told the crew of 100 in a radio message they will have proved the deterrent value of their task only "if the need to fire your missiles never arises."

He added that if the need to fire should arise, "your ship and the missiles it carries will contribute to the salvation of civilization, for you man the most powerful weapons system ever devised."

The Navy has said the 16 Polaris missiles in the George Washington equal in destructive power all of the bombs dropped during World War II.

Half Of States Will Gain Or Lose Seats In House Because Of Population Shifts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Final results of the 1960 census were made public Tuesday by the Commerce Department, which said half of the 50 states will gain or lose seats in the House of Representatives because of population shifts.

Each state which picks up or loses House seats also will gain or lose the same number of votes in the Electoral College, which formally selects the president. Each state's vote in the electoral college is the sum of its Senate and House members.

The 1960 presidential vote won't be affected. The changes will not go into effect until the congressional elections of November 1962.

On the basis of final tabulations, the department said the 50 states had a population of 179,323,175 on April 1—the date of the house-to-house census. This represented a gain of 18.5 per cent over the 1950 total of 151,325,798.

The count did not include Americans stationed or living abroad, such as servicemen and dependents, embassy personnel, and private businessmen. If these were added, officials said, the total would exceed 180 million.

The principal purpose of the once-a-decade census is to determine how many House seats, and electoral votes, each state shall have. These are allotted according to population.

On the basis of the 1960 count, House seats will be reapportioned starting with the 88th Congress which will be elected in November 1962.

California will be the biggest gainer in the realignment, picking up eight seats. Florida will gain four seats and the following states will gain one each: Arizona, Hawaii, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio and Texas.

Pennsylvania will lose three seats. New York, Massachusetts and Arkansas will lose two each. Dropping one seat apiece will be Alabama, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Nebraska and West Virginia.

The number of losses exceeds the number of gains because the House currently has 437 members instead of the usual 435. Two extra seats were granted to Alaska and Hawaii after they obtained statehood. The number will revert to 435 after the reapportionment.

A-Spy Completes Term; Future Plans Unrevealed

NEW YORK (AP)—A convicted atom bomb spy for Russia has completed his term in prison and will step out onto the streets of New York Wednesday as a free man.

He is David Greenglass, 38, whose testimony in 1951 helped send his sister, Mrs. Ethel Rosenberg, and her husband, Julius, to death in the Sing Sing Prison electric chair for their part in the spy plot.

What lies ahead for Greenglass?

Does he have the promise of a job? Does he intend to stay in the United States?

If officials know, they are not saying.

Greenglass, who joined in turning the nations' most guarded secret over to the Soviets, then made a clean breast of it in court, has not indicated publicly.

He is an American citizen and so there is no possibility of deportation.

Greenglass served his term in the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., and was transferred to the Federal House of Detention here last weekend.

He is scheduled to walk out of the House of Detention at 8 a.m. for whatever future lies ahead.

He has a wife, Ruth, and two children.

Greenglass was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Irving R. Kaufman on April 6, 1951, to 15 years. His release after serving 9½ years stems from good behavior in prison.

Kaufman sentenced the Rosenbergs to death and committed Morton Sobell, a fourth defendant, to 30 years. Sobell still is in prison. The Rosenbergs and Sobell had pleaded innocent.

Atlas Capsule Is Recovered

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —The Air Force fired an Atlas missile 5,000 miles Tuesday and recovered a data capsule that ejected from its nose cone and parachuted into the sea.

Later, a Mace-B guided missile was launched on a 1,000-mile test flight after standing on its pad in a "hot hold" ready-to-fire status for more than 31 hours.

The Atlas thundered to a bulls-eye off the South Atlantic island of Ascension, covering the distance in 25 minutes at a peak speed of more than 17,000 miles an hour.

The 30-inch cylindrical capsule plunked into the water and two hours later was retrieved by the ocean range vessel Timber Hitch.

The capsule was crammed with instruments and a tiny tape recorder to determine how the 1½ ton cone survived the jolting journey. The cone was coated with improved materials designed to afford better protection for hydrogen warheads carried on operational Atlases like those now stationed at bases in California and Wyoming.

Kennedy's Popular Vote Edge Smallest Since 1888

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President-elect John F. Kennedy's popular vote margin over Vice President Richard M. Nixon in last Tuesday's election was the smallest in any presidential contest in 72 years.

Measuring it in other ways, the election was the closest since 1884, 1916 or 1948.

With a record 67,799,789 votes counted to date, the UPI tabulation gave Kennedy a lead of 342,624 over Nixon. That's the smallest margin since 1888 when Grover Cleveland outpolled Benjamin Harrison by 90,728 popular votes but lost in the electoral column.

Kennedy had 50.25 per cent of the two-party vote and Nixon 49.75 per cent. This was the closest percentage margin since 1884 when Cleveland defeated James G. Blaine by 29,314 votes, or 50.15 to 49.85 per cent.

In electoral votes, Kennedy' victory was either the closest since 1948 when Harry S. Truman won with 303, which was 37 more than a bare majority, or since 1916 when Woodrow Wilson won with 277—11 more than a bare majority. It depends on just what Kennedys' final electoral tally is.

The electoral vote in Tuesday's election wont' be known for sure until Dec. 19 when the presidential electors meet in their various state capitals to cast their ballots.

Kennedy was assured of the 269 needed to win. With the vote count still incomplete or unofficial in most states he was leading in states with 338 electoral votes. Nixon was ahead in states with 191 electors. A slate pledged to neither Kennedy nor Nixon captured Mississippi's eight electoral votes.

Fragments Of Rocket Fall On South Africa

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said Tuesday that fragments of an errant moon rocket launched Sept. 25 at Cape Canaveral, Fla., fell on the Union of South Africa.

The metal chunks plummeted to earth on a farm near Zoekmekaar in the northern Transvaal, 8,000 to 8,500 miles from the launching site.

C&O Extends Offer To B&O For Last Time

CLEVELAND (AP) — Chesapeake & Ohio Railway directors Tuesday extended to Dec. 14 an exchange offer for Baltimore & Ohio Railroad shares and said this will be absolutely the last extension.

The original offer to exchange one share of C&O common for each share of B&O preferred and one share of C&O common for each 1¾ shares of B&O common was to have expired Sept. 12 but later was extended to Nov. 30.

Tuesday's extension was termed absolutely final by Walter J. Tuohy, C&O president.

Tuohy said more than 8,000 B&O shareowners now have submitted 942,954 shares under the exchange offer. "Our contacts with other shareowners make us believe they have been waiting for two things before they act: The setting of an absolute final date and the assurance that the terms of the offer are final," he said.

The New York Central system has made a rival exchange offer and has agreed to join B&O in making studies on a possible merger of the two roads. NYC has declined to say how much B&O stock has been tendered for exchange. That offer also expires Dec. 14.

Tuohy said about 30 per cent of the outstanding B&O stock has been tendered, including 37.8 per cent of B&O preferred stock and 28.1 per cent of the common stock.

"We believe the B&O share owners are ready to stand and be counted in favor of the benefits to them, the railroad industry and the public interest of B&O-C&O affiliation and merger as promptly as possible," Tuohy said.

Byrd Stands Firm As Dorsey Questions Legality Of His Holding Two Positions

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A fullblown dispute developed Tuesday over Dr. H. C. Byrd holding the dual role of chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission and director of the fisheries department.

Sen. Walter B. Dorsey, D-St. Marys, Monday questioned the legality of Byrd wearing the two hats simultaneously and said he would ask the attorney general for an opinion.

The law under which the TFC was reorganized in 1959 separated the posts, which had been combined under a previous three-man commission.

Byrd and the five-member commission he took office with in June, 1959, have not yet named a fulltime director for the department. Byrd has been filling that job while being paid only as chairman of the TFC.

In a sharply worded reply to the St. Marys senator, Byrd said he intends to remain in charge of the department "until the work is put on an effective basis and is removed from control or interference on a basis of politics."

Gov. Tawes declined to comment directly on the dispute but an aide said the governor was "highly satisfied" with the way the fisheries department has performed administratively under Byrd. The aide said Tawes considers a vacancy exists in the directorship and is to be filled by the commission itself.

Byrd said that under his reorganization plans for the department, there will be two different directorships.

The TFC chairman said he wants an executive officer to serve as an assistant to the commission and handle the agency's administrative duties, law enforcement and other problems. Byrd said he had interviewed a man for this position but no appointment is presently in sight.

The other director will handle development and research and will occupy a vital spot in rehabilitation of the seafood industry, Byrd said. He said he has offered this job to four men, all of whom declined.

Byrd said he hopes both positions can be filled before long but he is primarily concerned about getting the right men.

He said he took on the administrative duties of department director without additional compensation because "it was apparent that, if a good job were to be done, some virulent criticism would have to be encountered from a few who might be more interested in their own political situation than in the basic welfare of the watermen and the seafood industry."

He suggested Dorsey's criticism of him stems from the recent dispute over a new Potomac River Compact with Virginia, which Byrd and the TFC endorsed and Dorsey and Southern Maryland watermen opposed.

Tawes Says Assembly To Redistrict State

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Tuesday he is "highly gratified" that Maryland will get an eighth congressional seat as a result of the 1960 census.

Tawes said the redistricting of the state will be handled by the 1961 General Assembly which meets in January.

"I have not given the matter enough thought to comment on any particular plan of redistricting," he added.

The final count of the 1960 census gave Maryland a total population of 3,100,689. The 1950 tabulation was 2,343,001. Maryland moved from 24th position among the states in 1950 to 21st in 1960.

Moroccan Air Force To Get Russian Jets

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The Soviet Union has agreed to supply the Moroccan air force with jet aircraft, the royal government announced Tuesday night.

No indication was given of the type or number of aircraft. They will constitute the first Russian military aid given to this strategic northwest African nation where the United States has maintained bases and provided military aid.

The first Russian jets are expected here shortly to help mark Moroccan independence celebrations that begin Wednesday with a military parade at Marrakesh.

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Maryland Baptists Tuesday re-elected the Rev. G. W. Bullard of Baltimore as their state president and voted to change the name of the statewide organization to the Baptist Convention of Maryland.

The change of name from Maryland Baptists Union Association puts Maryland in line with most other state organizations within the Southern Baptist Convention.

X15's New Engine Hailed

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Veteran rocket plane pilot Scott Crossfield Tuesday flew an X15 equipped with the most powerful aircraft engine ever built—and said it is even hotter than expected.

Its acceleration was so abrupt, he said, it was "almost like an explosion."

He made this prediction for the sleek rocket plane, expected to soar to the edge of space: "I'm sure it will exceed all our expectations. We have overestimated the drag (wind resistance) of the plane with its new engine.'

Although under orders to hold the engine at half throttle, Crossfield zoomed to nearly 80,000 feet Tuesday at a top speed close to 2,000 m.p.h.

That's no record. Other X15s, with smaller engines and flown by other pilots, have gone 2,196 m.p.h. and reached 136,500 feet.

On all out flights with the big engine the X15 is expected to hit 4,000 m.p.h. and streak perhaps 100 miles high.

The new engine, called the ZLR-99, burns liquid oxygen and anhydrous ammonia and develops a thrust of 57,000 pounds. Thats' almost four times the thrust of the smaller ZLR11 engine, which burns a water and alcohol mixture.

Byrd said he hopes both positions can be filled before long but he is primarily concerned about getting the right men.

He said he took on the administrative duties of department director without additional compensation because "it was apparent that, if a good job were to be done, some virulent criticism would have to be encountered from a few who might be more interested in their own political situation than in the basic welfare of the watermen and the seafood industry."

He suggested Dorsey's criticism of him stems from the recent dispute over a new Potomac River Compact with Virginia, which Byrd and the TFC endorsed and Dorsey and Southern Maryland watermen opposed.

Tawes Says Assembly To Redistrict State

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Tuesday he is "highly gratified" that Maryland will get an eighth congressional seat as a result of the 1960 census.

Tawes said the redistricting of the state will be handled by the 1961 General Assembly which meets in January.

"I have not given the matter enough thought to comment on any particular plan of redistricting," he added.

The final count of the 1960 census gave Maryland a total population of 3,100,689. The 1950 tabulation was 2,343,001. Maryland moved from 24th position among the states in 1950 to 21st in 1960.

Moroccan Air Force To Get Russian Jets

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The Soviet Union has agreed to supply the Moroccan air force with jet aircraft, the royal government announced Tuesday night.

No indication was given of the type or number of aircraft. They will constitute the first Russian military aid given to this strategic northwest African nation where the United States has maintained bases and provided military aid.

The first Russian jets are expected here shortly to help mark Moroccan independence celebrations that begin Wednesday with a military parade at Marrakesh.

Md. Baptists Change Name Of Organization

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Maryland Baptists Tuesday re-elected the Rev. G. W. Bullard of Baltimore as their state president and voted to change the name of the statewide organization to the Baptist Convention of Maryland.

The change of name from Maryland Baptists Union Association puts Maryland in line with most other state organizations within the Southern Baptist Convention.

X15's New Engine Hailed

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Veteran rocket plane pilot Scott Crossfield Tuesday flew an X15 equipped with the most powerful aircraft engine ever built—and said it is even hotter than expected.

Its acceleration was so abrupt, he said, it was "almost like an explosion."

He made this prediction for the sleek rocket plane, expected to soar to the edge of space: "I'm sure it will exceed all our expectations. We have overestimated the drag (wind resistance) of the plane with its new engine.'

Although under orders to hold the engine at half throttle, Crossfield zoomed to nearly 80,000 feet Tuesday at a top speed close to 2,000 m.p.h.

That's no record. Other X15s, with smaller engines and flown by other pilots, have gone 2,196 m.p.h. and reached 136,500 feet.

On all out flights with the big engine the X15 is expected to hit 4,000 m.p.h. and streak perhaps 100 miles high.

The new engine, called the ZLR-99, burns liquid oxygen and anhydrous ammonia and develops a thrust of 57,000 pounds. Thats' almost four times the thrust of the smaller ZLR11 engine, which burns a water and alcohol mixture.

Baltimore Police Check Of Gun Sales Ordered

BALTIMORE (AP) — Police Commissioner James M. Hepbron Tuesday ordered his men to begin a check of all places in the city where firearms are sold.

The directive was prompted by the arrset of Gerald Bernstein, 32, owner of a sporting goods store, on a charge of conspiring to violate the city firearms sales law.

In addition to Bernstein, police were holding an Italian seaman, a crewman from a Liberian vessel which makes regular trips between Baltimore and South American ports.

The seaman, Gaetano Emanns Schena, 29, of Genoa, Italy, was ordered held as a State's witness in the case. Police said Schena had 10 guns in his possession when arrested.

Hepbron said police were directed to check gun registry books, which all dealers are required to keep under the law. He indicated the check would determine if Baltimore is a point of export for weapons to other nations.

Bernstein was released after posting $5,000 bond. Scena was held in $1,000 bond.

Schena and two other Italian seamen were arrested at Pennsylvania Station here Thursday by railroad police. The other two men, Guiseppe Castra, 24, and Valerio Catullo, 20, both of Genoa, offered no resistance.

Classroom TV Funds Sought

HAGERSTOWN (AP) — The Washington County Board of Education asked the county commissioners Tuesday to authorize funds to continue classroom television here after a Ford Foundation grant expires next June.

William M. Brish, county superintendent of schools, said the television teaching program would require an additional $90,000 in education allocations next year and $181,000 more on the school budget the following year.

The Ford Foundation financed the pilot television system here four years ago, covering public schools throughout the county. It serves both elementary and junior and senior high schools, as an implement to regular instruction.

Failure to continue the system, Brish told the county commissioners, would not save money because there would be a resulting need for more teachers.

The commissioners are not expected to rule before the first of December on the request for additional appropriations.

Anne Arundel Court Move In Reapportion Suit Urged

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Maryland League of Women Voters has urged Anne Arundel County Circuit Court to take jurisdiction in a suit seeking to force reapportionment of the Maryland Legislature.

The attorney general has asked that the suit, filed by the Maryland Committee for Fair Representation, be thrown out of court on grounds it is a "political question" not within the courts' right to determine.

The League of Women Voters filed a "friend-of-the-court" brief supporting arguments of the committee. It told the court immediate problems of urbanization in the Baltimore - Washington area can not be adequately met through a rural-dominated legislature and that "Maryland's outmoded constitution" probably wont' be revised with such a legislature in power.

Backers of the move to force a realignment of seats in the legislature argue that more than three-fourths of the state's population is centered in the metropolitan areas of Baltimore City, Baltimore County, and Anne Arundel, Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties. Less than half the house of delegates and about a third of the Senate represents these areas.

Judge O. Bowie Duckett heard arguments last Saturday on the attorney general's demurrer to the suit. He indicated he might rule against the petitioners on grounds that a "political question" is involved, but he reserved a formal decision until later.

Jury Impaneled In Holdup Case; Trial Recessed

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — A trial of four men accused of a $10,300 robbery at a private club was recessed Tuesday to permit defense attorneys to examine evidence and State Police records in the case.

Harold Levine, a Washington lawyer who is among five defense attorneys, asked for disclosure of the records, including "what items of gambling were found in the club."

The defendants are accused of an April 11 holdup of some 20 patrons of the Spartan Club, two miles south of Frederick.

Levines' motion was approved by Judge James Macgill, who told the jury of 10 men and two women to prepare for night sessions in the case at Howard County Circuit Court.

The jury, including two male alternates, finally was impaneled after 46 other prospective jurors had been questioned and dismissed.

Judge Macgill granted a motion continuing the case against a fifth man charged in the robbery. That defendant, Benjamin Grief, 51, of New York, is hospitalized in Washington and will be tried separately.

The judge Monday denied a defense motion for separate trials for all of the defendants.

On trial are Johnny Douglas, 43, Newark, N.J.; Willie Williams, 35, Newark; James Toland, 55, Washington, and Charles Graves, 35, East Orange, N.J.

Gun Blast Kills Tractor Operator

EASTON, Md. (AP) — A 65-year-old Caroline County farmer was accidentally killed Tuesday when a shotgun he was carrying discharged.

State Police said Harry J. Murphy, owner of a farm three miles east of here, was operating a tractor which was pulling a wagon across a plowed field.

The police said Murphy was holding a .16 gauge, hammer-type, single-barrel shotgun under his right arm and apparently intended to shoot any rabbits he scared up.

The butt of the shotgun was resting on the floor of the tractor, police said, and it discharged as the tractor moved over the rough terrain. The blast hit him in the upper right chest.

Baltimore Police Check Of Gun Sales Ordered

BALTIMORE (AP) — Police Commissioner James M. Hepbron Tuesday ordered his men to begin a check of all places in the city where firearms are sold.

The directive was prompted by the arrset of Gerald Bernstein, 32, owner of a sporting goods store, on a charge of conspiring to violate the city firearms sales law.

In addition to Bernstein, police were holding an Italian seaman, a crewman from a Liberian vessel which makes regular trips between Baltimore and South American ports.

The seaman, Gaetano Emanns Schena, 29, of Genoa, Italy, was ordered held as a State's witness in the case. Police said Schena had 10 guns in his possession when arrested.

Hepbron said police were directed to check gun registry books, which all dealers are required to keep under the law. He indicated the check would determine if Baltimore is a point of export for weapons to other nations.

Bernstein was released after posting $5,000 bond. Scena was held in $1,000 bond.

Longest-lasting, low-cost pavement. Saves tax dollars because up to 75% of the materials are free!

CROSS SECTION

How long should a low-budget street last? There are soil-cement streets over 20 years old—will last years longer! Soil-cement lasts longer because it is stronger than any other pavement short of concrete. It actually grows stronger year by year.

With soil-cement, road materials at hand are used. The main ingredient is often soil underfoot or old broken-up blacktop and gravel. Portland cement and water are added. This is rolled solid, then covered with a bituminous topping.

Your community, too, can have better streets at low cost with soil-cement. Illustrated booklet, "Sold On Their Soil-Cement Streets," is yours for the asking.

Sheriff Haberlein Seeks Bond Ruling

I wish to thank you, the voters of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick and Montgomery Counties, for your confidence and trust.

As your Congressman, my efforts will focus on the problems confronting the Sixth District of Maryland including education, economic development and human rights.

Sincerely,

Charles "Mac" Mathias

Authority Robert A. Wallace, Treas.

Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein yesterday was advised to write the Attorney General's office for a legal ruling on a claim he has made that prisoners are being illegally detained in the county lockup.

Sheriff Haberlein appeared before the Board of Commissioners of Allegany County yesterday to state that prisoners have been refused the right to post bond. The sheriff said that in all instances the refusal had been by Trial Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt, and that it was his opinion the persons held were deprived of their legal rights.

Haberlein sought the opinion of Leslie J. Clark, county attorney, who advised the sheriff to write the Attorney General's office for a decision.

Questioning disclosed the fact that Weatherholt also had requested other magistrates not to accept bond from any person arrested on a warrant signed by him (Weatherholt).

The sheriff said he would not question the magistrate's decision on any felony, but that in all cases of refusal to accept bond the persons were picked up on minor charges.

Haberlein also said Magistrate Weatherholt previously had advised him that he would be available for legal processes on a 24-hour basis. The magistrate has not lived up to his statement, the sheriff continued and even has refused to set bond when requested to do so by telephone call.

Previous practice, he told the commissioners, was for the sheriff's staff to accept bond in minor cases, but this was discontinued at the request of magistrates.

Magistrate Weatherholt had no immediate comment.

Finances Are In Good Shape At Miners

Through the collection of past due bills and the receipt of state funds, the Miners Hospital in Frostburg has managed to keep its head above water financially so far this year.

The financial statement for October and also the first ten months of this year was presented to the Board of Allegany County Commissioners by the Board of Governors of the hospital.

On July 1 this Board of Governors took over the operation of the hospital and direct state aid ended.

As of the first ten months of this year operating revenues were in the black over operating expenses in the amount of $10,699.95.

However, deduction of a sum for depreciation of plant and equipment figured at $9,522.04 cut the margin to $1,177.91.

But the picture is not that bleak. Collection of accounts billed prior to July 1 and state appropriations bring the net income for the first ten months up to $43,801.36.

Net income for October came to $3,451.52. Here, it was pointed out, that last month the gross income from service to patients was $23,644.81. The total for the first ten months was $98,417.16, which showed that income from this source was much higher than in the other months.

Operating expenses, discount allowances, and provisions for doubtful accounts, brought total operating expenses to $21,878.65 for October. The ten-month total was $79,049.49.

Deduction of patient-service income from actual operating expenses for October put the hospital in the red $374.31.

For the ten-month period, this same income over expenses figure was $10,699.95 in the black.

But there were deductions for depreciation of the building and equipment, $2,380.51 for October, and $9,533,04 for the ten months so far.

This reduced the October operating figure to $2,754.82 in the red, and put the ten-month figure at only $1,177.91 in the black.

But these are not the only figures that have to be taken into account.

The hospital in October collected $1,227.05 in accounts billed prior to July 1 and received $4,337.50 in state appropriations given to all hospitals in excess of Department of Public Assistance funds.

The DPA allowance for October in excess of billings came to $618.89. Total income from other sources other than patients came to $6,206.34.

This overcame the operating deficit by $3,451.52 for October.

For the ten-month period, income other than from patients came to $42,623.45. Of this amount, $25,579.24 came from collections of accounts billed prior to July 1; $13,578.50 from state appropriations; and $11,964.89 from the Department of Public Assistance.

The statement also reported that the hospital has accounts receivable of $26,936.39.

Retallick Retires At Amcelle

John Arthur Retallick, RD 1, Frostburg, retired yesterday from the Amcelle plant af the Celanese Fibers Company after completing 33 years of service that started on July 6, 1927.

He was presented the gift of an overstuffed chair at a dinner Saturday at the Cresaptown Fire Hall which was sponsored by the shift supervision personnel of the Extrusion Manufacturing Department at Amcelle. He is senior foreman of the department.

G. E. Hendrickson, general foreman of the department, was the principal speaker at the dinner program. R. C. Kiser, area supervisor, was toastmaster, and J. E. Cope, shift supervisor, gave the invocation.

The presentation of the gift was made by J. G. Wenrich, shift foreman. Also participating in the program was T. F. Powers, subchairman of the B Shift committee in the Preparation Department.

Togas Taboo In Rome

ROME (AP)—Togas are taboo on Via Veneto, where almost anything else goes.

Six toga-togged tourists—identified by police as five Americans and a Briton—discovered that. Police halted their toga parade on the famous Roman avenue, though they said their idea was "when in Rome, etc."

But that Rome, police told them, is long gone. Modern Italian law forbids wearing of togas or any other odd costume on the public streets unless a police permit is obtained in advance.

Declarer in today's hand managed to execute a simple little safety play when he diagnosed that the defense was trying to obtain a ruff to defeat his slam contract.

The six spade bid was the height of soundness. South had 26 points (23 in high cards and three in distribution) and accordingly opened with a demand bid of two spades. North decided to show his five card suit first and responded with three diamonds. When South showed his second suit, North was well primed to head toward slam with a return to three spades, awaiting further information from partner. With spades established as trumps, South took the precaution to check for aces, for North might conceivably have an aceless hand. When it was established that the enemy held only one ace, South resolved the issue then and there.

After listening to South's vigorous bidding, West concluded that a club lead held forth no prospect for the defense and decided to play upon the theory that South, in addition to spades and hearts, had at least two cards in his partner's suit. This would make it haghly likely that East could obtain a second round ruff in diamonds or conceivably the damage might be done on the first round. He therefore led the jack of diamonds.

Declarer suspected the enemy plot, though he could not tell from which side the ruff impended. An immediate trump lead would be fatal if the player with the long diamonds held the ace of trumps. So declarer cashed the ace of clubs, ruffed himself into dummy with a second round of hearts, and discarded his remaining diamond on the king of clubs. Now came time for the trump lead. West was in with the ace of spades but realized that the diamond ruff was not available.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My boy friend and I were at a movie the other night and we sat behind a couple of women who kept talking and laughing. They were not paying any attention to the picture and everyone around them was giving them dirty looks, which they ignored.

After fifteen minutes, my boy friend tapped one of them on the shoulder and said very politely, "If you two blabber-mouths don't shut up I'm going to throw you out."

One of the women answered, "We paid our money, the same as you — and if you don't like it YOU can move."

My boy friend lost his temper and slammed her over the head with a box of caramel corn. She yelled bloody murder and the manager came running. He took our names and made the four of us leave the theatre. (He refunded our money).

Today my boy friend got a notice in the mail saying he must appear in court. The charge is assault and battery. The woman was not injured. What can we do?

— NEED ADVICE

DEAR NEED: Get a lawyer. A person need not be rendered unconscious in order to sue for assault and battery.

Noisy people in a theatre should be reported to an usher. When a patron takes matters into his own hands as your fiance did, the fight becomes personal. A theatre patron has the right to expect peace and quiet. When he doesn't get it, it's the responsibility of the management to take steps.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You may decide this problem stems from pure jealousy and maybe you're right.

Our closest friends in this rather small community are a couple who have a great deal of charm and intellectual appeal. I'm sure the woman's interest in US, however is my husband. Things have reached the point where every casual hello or goodbye is a kiss on the lips. In between, she manages many hugs, pats, winks and pecks on the cheek. She also likes to sit on his lap.

I'd like to make it clear that SHE is the aggressive one. My husband, like most attractive men, is none too adroit at dodging her attentions, however.

A rift would be awkward as we are a "set foursome." What can I do to get her to keep her lips and hands off my husband?

— H. L. C.

DEAR H. L. C.: Don't demean yourself by asking her to "keep away" from your man. You'll sound like a scared wife, and she'll be greatly complimented at your display of insecurity.

Tell your husband you wouldn't dream of letting another man become so familiar with you because you belong to HIM. Let him know you'd appreciate equal consideration.

DEAR ANN: My father is a very nice guy but he embarrasses me. He's a barber, and a good one, but every guy who comes into this house gets a sales talk and a business card.

The pitch goes like this: "My Lord, who cut your hair? You look like the barber was trying to get even with you for something. If you want a GOOD haircut . . ." and then out comes his business card.

I've asked him to stop it but he says "It pays to advertise." I told him I was going to write for your opinion. He said "O. K." but he made me enclose this card — for your husband. Thank you.

— EMMA

DEAR EMMA: A commercial pitch to guests in your home is in extremely bad taste. Thanks for the card but we live in Chicago and it would be inconvenient for my husband to go to Little Rock for his haircuts.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

(While Louella Parsons is on vacation her column will be written by Dorothy Manners).

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Stack, riding high in TV's highest rating show, "The Untouchables," once again is thinking about the movies. Bob has bought "Hide and Seek," the story of hero Hugh Barr Miller, a young captain, who spent 32 days alone on a Japanese-held island and not only came out with his life but with a map that helped us take New Guinea. Later Miller received the Navy Cross for heroism.

This is the story Bob will use for his return to the screen. He will be the producer under his Bob Langford-Productions independent set-up as well as star.

Someone was sure to get around to a story about tranquilizing pills, the taking of which is our national indoor sport, and sure enough Reginald Addams has written "Tranquil Liza," a comedy, which has been bought by Eve Arden and husband Brooks West. Under the banner of Westhaven Productions, Eve and Brooks have formed their own independent company to produce plays as well as motion pictures.

Eve says she's laughed so much reading "Tranquil Liza" she just had to own it. It's about a female scientist who finds a tranquilizer which renders a human being incapable of any act of violence or aggression and she's dispatched around the world to slip it to the Khrushchev and Castro type characters.

If Jerry Wald is successful in getting Sir Alex Guiness to star in "Ulysses'—he has a bone to pick with him. When Wald was bidding for the rights to the controversial James Joyce novel, he found only one man in the race against him. This unknown purchaser kept the price going up and up into the rarefied figures.

After Jerry finally acquired the rights, he asked who the so-and-so was who had forced him up so high. You guessed it—it was Sir Alex who has long coveted the role of Bloom!

Joanne Woodward writes Miss L.O.P from Paris: "Paul (Newman) and I are shamelessly in love with Paris, rain and all. We are living in a beautiful little house in Montmartre, tucked away in a little alley, and it has crystal chandeliers, but no hot water; a marble staircase, but practically no heat except open fireplaces—but the most gorgeous view of Paris imaginable.

"We have a French chauffeur named Pierre (What else?) who can only work three nights a week because the other nights he goes to actors' school!

"Our picture 'Paris Blues' is under way after weeks of rehearsing. We love the way they work here—two hours off for lunch and if you take a little longer—no one cares.

"Our small daughter, Nell, is now chattering in three languages —English, French and Israeli. Hope to see you soon after New Years'."

Herbert Marshall, who has been working with his daughter Sarah for the first time in one of the "Hong Kong" TV chapters at 20th, soon will be known as the father of another talented young lady. His daughter by his second wife, Lee Russell, is about to follow in his footsteps. She is Ann Marshall, a reddish - haired, green-eyed beauty who has just turned 18. Ann looks a great deal like her mother at the time Lee gave up her career to marry Bart. MGM, where her mother worked for so many years, is testing Ann.

Heart Secretary Gets Citation

Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, executive secretary of the Allegany-Garrett Heart Association, received special recognition from the board of trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland at the annual state meeting in Baltimore. The presentation, in the form of a framed letter of citation, was made by Dr. Luther Terry of Bethesda, assistant director of the National Heart Institute.

Local Delegation Attends Annual Md. Heart Session

The Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association received special notice at the annual meeting of the Heart Association of Maryland held Thursday in Baltimore.

Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, executive secretary of the local Heart Association, received a framed citation from the board of trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland "for the selfless and effective way of conducting the business of the chapter and yet not minimizing the work which volunteers and co-workers have performed, and recognition of the splendid performance given in the face of formidable obstacles . . ."

Attending from Cumberland were James W. Bishop, president of Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association, Mrs. James W. Bishop, Ernest B. Treat, who was elected to the Board of Trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland, F. Allan Weatherholt, Mrs. William H. Macy, and Mrs. Lewis.

The local delegates were among 300 members of the Heart Association representing the 10 community units in Maryland.

A highlight of the activities of the day was a 90-minute panel discussion in which the president of the American Heart Association, Dr. Oglesby Paul of Chicago, the assistant director of the National Heart Institute, Dr. Luther Terry of Bethesda; and Dr. Sidney Scherlis of Baltimore discussed the status of heart research and prospects for the future.

Dr. Paul told the volunteers and physicians attending the annual meeting that research men must not be required to find support for their work from one giant "colossus" agency.

At the annual dinner, Raeburn H. Parker of Monkton was installed as president of the state association for the coming year. The second annual communications award of the Maryland Heart Association was given to WBAL-TV for its "The Living Heart" program on open-heart surgery for a Garrett County youth, presented on February 19.

Heart Secretary Gets Citation

Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, executive secretary of the Allegany-Garrett Heart Association, received special recognition from the board of trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland at the annual state meeting in Baltimore. The presentation, in the form of a framed letter of citation, was made by Dr. Luther Terry of Bethesda, assistant director of the National Heart Institute.

Parking Receipts Down

Inspector Harry Whisner reported that parking meter receipts the week of November 6 were $756.36 compared to $768.30 the week of October 30, a decrease of $11.94.

Local Delegation Attends Annual Md. Heart Session

The Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association received special notice at the annual meeting of the Heart Association of Maryland held Thursday in Baltimore.

Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, executive secretary of the local Heart Association, received a framed citation from the board of trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland "for the selfless and effective way of conducting the business of the chapter and yet not minimizing the work which volunteers and co-workers have performed, and recognition of the splendid performance given in the face of formidable obstacles . . ."

Attending from Cumberland were James W. Bishop, president of Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association, Mrs. James W. Bishop, Ernest B. Treat, who was elected to the Board of Trustees of the Heart Association of Maryland, F. Allan Weatherholt, Mrs. William H. Macy, and Mrs. Lewis.

The local delegates were among 300 members of the Heart Association representing the 10 community units in Maryland.

A highlight of the activities of the day was a 90-minute panel discussion in which the president of the American Heart Association, Dr. Oglesby Paul of Chicago, the assistant director of the National Heart Institute, Dr. Luther Terry of Bethesda; and Dr. Sidney Scherlis of Baltimore discussed the status of heart research and prospects for the future.

Dr. Paul told the volunteers and physicians attending the annual meeting that research men must not be required to find support for their work from one giant "colossus" agency.

At the annual dinner, Raeburn H. Parker of Monkton was installed as president of the state association for the coming year. The second annual communications award of the Maryland Heart Association was given to WBAL-TV for its "The Living Heart" program on open-heart surgery for a Garrett County youth, presented on February 19.

Lots Of Chimneys For Santa

• Miami Meeting: A Hopeful Sign

That unprecedented display of cordiality and let-bygones-be-bygones the day before yesterday in Miami was as heartening as it was paradoxical. Senator John F. Kennedy, as President-elect of the United States, was paying a call to Vice President Richard M. Nixon, whom he had just defeated in a hard-fought campaign. The two men greeted each other warmly, talked privately for more than an hour, and posed in a friendly and relaxed scene for the photographers.

Only a little more than a week earlier, the Vice President had referred to the Senator as a "Pied Piper from Boston," who was "irresponsibly running down the country." The Senator was comparing the Vice President with an elephant "who has had to be led around by an escort." In short, the campaign was fairly typical of an American Presidential contest, in that there was a bit of biting in the clinches. We assume that the warm handshakes in Miami the other day patched up all of that, and we can thank our leaders for setting such a strong example of forgetting the past and looking toward the future, where there are problems enough.

Certainly this is a time for as much bigness as both sides can muster. Whether or not Mr. Kennedy, as President, will seek to form a bipartisan administration remains to be seen. He must move cautiously if he is not to lose the support of his own party by spreading the credit and the responsibility too thinly over a bipartisan arrangement. At the same time, Vice President Nixon naturally would have sincere reservations about any coalition government, lest he compromise his own prospective position as leader of an effective opposition party, not to mention his hopes for the Presidency in 1964.

In the meantime, the expressions of good will and the evidences of magnanimity all around are hopeful signs.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

It Costs Too Much

The most impressive fact about the recent tight election was that it cost too much in time, in money and in human energy. As for time, from the pre-primary effort, which started two years ago, to Election Day, men who should have been fully engaged at their work were chasing about the country seeking delegations, making deals, exhibiting themselves in the hope that they might be elected.

No one will ever know, not even the candidates, what the election actually cost. There will be formal reports but these will represent only a small share of the total. In the first place, there are all sorts of separate organizations and committees with which the candidates have little contact. These organizations are usually devised to make it possible for those who wish to contribute large sums to split them up. Also, there is much handling of cash money under the table. This can never be proved and that is why it is done that way.

There are always men who contribute to both parties and to a variety of candidates and committees. By this device, they make their way to Heaven no matter who is elected. (I am, of course, not limiting this discussion to Presidential candidates.)

There ought to be a law, such as the British have, limiting campaign expenditures. It is not significant if the law limits campaign income, because much of that can never be proved. For instance, labor unions can contribute to a campaign out of educational funds and labor unions do not need to account for their contributions as political. But expenditures can be found. The largest bills are for television and travel. These can be accounted for. If a rigid, inflexible figure were made law and an over-expenditure made a felony, the election could become honest. Certainly, as it is, no man who does not have access to unusually enormous sums of money can be elected to the Presidency.

The time to discuss this is now when nobody is running for office and when no partisanship is involved. Even the reported figures for this election, when they shall be published, will be disgraceful and should be thoroughly investigated. The Roman Empire collapsed when public office went to the highest bidder. We do not want to reach that estate here.

As for time, it would seem that one month of campaigning is enough, if not too much. Only the television companies gain by prolonged campaigning and they only gain if they can sell non-sponsored time to a large number of stations. Otherwise, the prolonged campaign benefits nobody and is, in fact, a bore. After the first three or four speeches, it is all repetitious. It got so that I could make the Nixon and Kennedy speeches by heart. The candidates themselves must have been bored by the repetition of the same slogans, the identical run of words, none of them meaning very much but all of which had to be said with vehemence and vigor.

It would seem to me if the campaign were cut down to one month by law, all candidates would be exultant. They would perhaps have the time to write their own speeches and even to think about what they say. They would say what they mean. They would not be reading documents which they had never seen before, written by persons who had, on their own account, achieved slight or no distinction as public figures or philosophers. Most speechwriters are inexpert persons on the fringe of public relations or in the professional disciplines. Most of them never achieve any stature and have only memories of "making other men."

A month of speech-making is ample. I think that if there were a week of silence just before Election Day, it would be very beneficial. The people could then make up their minds without the cacophony of political speeches. They might sit back and read what had been said. They might analyze what had been said. They might read the Party Platforms or they might do nothing about it at all, depending upon their subconscious to guide them a-right.

Surely that would be better than the present preposterous method when the candidates talk so much that they drown in a sea of words.

White House Had An Air Of Gloom On Morning After Nixon's Defeat

By Jack Anderson

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson is traveling. In his absence today's column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.

WASHINGTON — The dramatic story can now be told of what happened inside the White House the morning Dwight D. Eisenhower became a lame-duck President.

He had gone to bed at 10:30 on election night without knowing who might succeed him. He had left two telegrams with Press Secretary Jim Hagerty—one warmly congratulating Dick Nixon, the other tersely congratulating Jack Kennedy—for dispatch to the victor.

Next morning, Hagerty still held both wires. He explained to the President that Nixon apparently had lost, but hadn't yet conceded.

For one whose own prestige and popularity had been laid on the line, Ike accepted the verdict calmly. His face, which always mirrors his mood, registered gloom. But all he said was: "Awful rough to lose."

He repeated the remark to other White House aides who stopped by to commiserate. He reminisced briefly about his part in the campaign, took some solace in the memory of the frenzied crowds that cheered him in Pittsburgh.

Later he strode into the Cabinet room for a special, historic Cabinet meeting to discuss the transfer of power to his successor.

Without a word, he settled into the President's chair. Those around the long, polished table bowed their heads for the customary silent prayer.

Secret Cabinet Minutes

Then Ike said soberly: "Well, the people have made their choice. It is too bad we didn't win, but our responsibility is to see that the government continues."

He read the telegram he intended to send to Kennedy.

"Dick hasn't conceded yet," Ike added. "I'm going to hold this until we're sure."

He commented that the election had been "awfully close."

"It looks as if Illinois will still go for Dick," he said.

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield launched into a post-mortem analysis of the election. He blamed the GOP loss principally upon the sleeves-up work of the labor unions. He suggested that the Republicans could win labor support if they would fight for it. He cited the example of Congressman Charles Chamberlain, Michigan Republican, who he claimed was re-elected with workingmen's votes.

But the President cut Summerfield short.

"Arthur," Ike interrupted. "I think this is just too premature. This is not the time nor place to consider the implications of the election."

Then he got down to the business for which he had called the Cabinet together.

"Transfer," Not "Transition"

"We have the problem of transition," he began.

Then he corrected himself.

"It shouldn't be called 'transition'. It should be called 'transfer'," he said. "I want to talk about transfer, not transition."

He described how his own liaison man, Joseph Dodge, had performed during the takeover from the Truman administration. Dodge simply listened, took careful notes, but kept out of the deliberations.

"I assume Kennedy will follow the same procedure," Ike said.

GOP National Chairman Thruston Morton, who sat in on the Cabinet meeting, recalled that he had served as liaison man in the State Department during the 1952 transfer.

"I didn't work on policy matters," he reported. "I studied procedures and structure."

"I think," suggested the President, "that any contact between the old and new administrations should be at the Secretary level."

He reminded the Cabinet that he was still President until January 20. Then he took up some routine business and hastily adjourned the historic meeting. He was in a hurry to get to Augusta, he explained, to play golf.

News Nuggets

THE GREAT GOLD MYSTERY—Central Intelligence agents have picked up evidence that the Russians are secretly attempting to manipulate the gold market. This may have helped cause the recent gold crisis, which has drained off our gold reserves. Intelligence Chief Allen Dulles was so alarmed that he made a secret trip overseas to check personally on the Communist gold manipulation.

MALENKOV vs. KHRUSHCHEV—The phony report that ex-Premier Georgi Malenkov had ousted Nikita Khrushchev and taken over the Kremlin again wasn't without some foundation. Malenkov was banished by Khrushchev two years ago to a hydroelectric power station in Siberia. But the American Embassy reports that Malenkov appears to be making a comeback. He now wields more than electric power inside the Communist hierarchy and may be in a position to challenge Khrushchev. American experts believe Khrushchev would remain the front man, however, even if stripped of his power. His removal might make the Soviet government appear too unstable.

SPY IN THE SKY—The Air Force will launch its first reconnaissance satellite, the Samos, as a substitute for the U-2 spy planes, next month. It will carry experimental equipment to relay photographs back to earth. Meanwhile, the United States has no accurate check on the missile shift that has been going on inside Russia ever since the Soviets bagged a U-2 on May 1.

Political Postscripts

One labor leader who didn't rejoice over Jack Kennedy's election was Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa who has been hounded by the Kennedy brothers. When a Kennedy victory seemed certain, Hoffa grumped to friends: "I'll have to hire 200 more lawyers to keep me out of jail." . . . Lamar Caudle, former assistant Attorney General, didn't lose his sense of humor during his stretch in the Tallahassee federal pen. "I lined up the inmates for Kennedy," he cracked . . . After winning the Presidency, Jack Kennedy still isn't satisfied. He has another burning desire, which will be up to his wife next month. He wants a son.

Party Unity And Kennedy's Appointments

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

The main decision Sen. Kennedy made as the immediate aftermath of his victory, was to make no further decisions at all until he had had a rest. His staff began to press for answers to a thousand questions, as staffs will. He told them, reportedly, that he was dizzy with the fatigue of the campaign, and would therefore give no answers until he returns from Florida.

Thus he went off for his vacation with every basic issue unresolved, except for his announcement that he was asking Allen Dulles and J. Edgar Hoover to continue at their posts. This he had wisely decided upon many weeks ago, when he first began to think about what shape a Kennedy administration ought to take.

Meanwhile, the biggest of the unresolved issues centers in the Secretaryship of State. It is an inflamed issue, because the liberal wing of the Democratic Party is campaigning hard to secure the first place in the Cabinet for Adlai Stevenson, and if Stevenson does not succeed, to insure the alternative appointment of Chester Bowles.

Long ago, Kennedy laid down his personal specifications for a Secretary of State. The ideal Secretary, he is remembered to have said, should be judicious enough to use the very best men available to represent the United States abroad. He should be intelligent and self-confident enough to solve minor problems satisfactorily on his own responsibility. And above all, he should be wise enough to identify the major problems and take them to the President for joint solution.

The specifications are impressive. But Sen. Kennedy, who can keep his own counsel as well as one of his Cape Cod clams, has let no one have an inkling of which individual he thinks will best meet his specfications.

On the face of the record, the most important indicator that this individual will not turn out to be Stevenson or Bowles, is simply the intensity of the liberal campaign to get the job for one of these two men.

All the forces that opposed Lyndon B. Johnson's nomination to the Vice Presidency are again being mobilized to plead for Bowles, or, better still, for Stevenson. Even the chieftain of the CIO, the redoubtable Walter Reuther, is reputed to be ready to plunge into the fray. The campaign's clarion call has already been publicly sounded, with an extremely able leading editorial in "The New Republic."

The parallel with the row about the Johnson nomination is instructive, because the Johnson nomination row revealed the persistent flaw in American political liberalism. This flaw is an incurable tendency to put shibboleths ahead of practical facts. Lyndon Johnson, for no logical reason at all, was a black shibboleth of evil to liberal eyes. Kennedy's choice of Johnson was therefore decried as a "betrayal," which was purley folly as the event proved.

In the same manner, though with better reasons, Adlai Stevenson and Chester Bowles are the liberals' shining shibboleths of virtue. Hence there will be renewed cries of "betrayal," if Kennedy does not name either Stevenson or Bowles to the Secretaryship of State.

There would indeed be grounds for complaint, if Kennedy failed to offer important places to both of these men. Obviously, however, he will not fail to do so. But he may well fail to offer either of them the one job their friends want for them. The reasons for suspecting this outcome are apparent. They all lie on the surface of the situation.

The first reason is the one already noted — the apprehensive tone of the campaign in favor of Stevenson and/or Bowles. The Stevenson-Bowles backers would hardly be so insistent if they did not have some cause, apparently of a private character, to fear a different choice.

The second reason is the character of Kennedy's specifications for Secretary of State, already listed above. It points toward the kind of man who will be temperamentally sympathetic to Kennedy, who will be primarily a first-rate technician, and who will give his entire energy to executing a Kennedy policy instead of pressing for an alternative policy.

Despite all the admirable qualities of Adlai Stevenson and Chester Bowles, it is at least doubtful whether either Stevenson or Bowles is quite the kind of man the Kennedy specifications point toward. In addition, there is the urgent need to unite the country, after a narrow electoral victory with very rough going ahead. The truth is, there is more need to unite the country now, than there was a need to unite the Democratic Party at Los Angeles, when the disputed choice of Johnson produced the necessary result. That, surely, is the point that has to be most carefully weighed.

REFUGEES FROM CUBA — Virtually unnoticed by the rest of the United States, Florida is being saddled with a human problem of huge proportions as hundreds of refugees from Castro's Cuba continue to pour into the states.

The numbers now total somewhere between 30,000 and 40,000. Most of them are penniless and seeking work. Florida does not have sufficient job opportunities to absorb them, nor does she have the kind of resources needed to supply even subsistence assistance indefinitely.

Only a relatively few of the early escapees had the opportunity to bring out some of their savings and possessions. The Castro regime has progressively tightened up on the flow of money and valuables out of Cuba to the point that many Cuban students in the United States can no longer obtain the funds from home they need to continue their education.

Florida employment offices are swamped with Cuban job applicants, many of whom are unfamiliar with the English language and therefore cannot obtain work in their chosen trades or professions. There are stories of professional men, doctors and lawyers who are working as waiters, busboys, car-hops and bootblacks.

Florida has appealed to the federal government for assistance in meeting the problem and Washington officials have been ordered to co-operate. As a result some additional relief funds and supplies can be expected to come out of Washington.

Long range, the administration is studying plans to re-educate and rehabilitate the refugees preparatory to moving many of them out of Florida to high employment areas of the country where they can be absorbed.

Jet Plane Mechanics Should Wear Earmuffs

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Those who jet to their destination ride in quiet and comfort but the men who service the ships have to contend with noise and fuel vapors. These are the chief health hazards to those working on jets, according to D. C. Murphy of Esso Petroleum Co., Ltd.

Noise intensity is measured in decibels and is calculated on a sound level meter. The slightest noise heard by a healthy young person is defined as 0 decibel. The level must go up to 140 decibels before it becomes painful. Ordinary speech is 60 decibels, whereas the background noise in a residential area at night is only 40. This may explain why a conversation between several persons on the sidewalks at night sounds so loud.

A car horn registers 114 decibels at 3 feet, a pneumatic drill 120, and a large pneumatic riveter 125 at 4 feet. A 50 horsepower victory siren at 100 feet is close to the top — 138.

Where does the jet fit into the pattern? The running engine in a test control room moves the level up to 118. When the sound meter is placed 80 feet from the jet at takeoff, it registers 130 or better—almost as high as the victory siren.

Mechanics and service men may not be bothered as yet but if they are to continue working in this noisy atmosphere for any length of time, they should wear ear protectors and have hearing tests at regular intervals.

Ear plugs are made of rubber, soft or hard plastic, or cotton. They must fit properly to screen out most of the noise and to prevent irritation. Makeshift protectors usually are unsatisfactory. Earmuffs are excellent because they are easily applied and can be removed quickly when the noise ceases.

TOMORROW: Our hospital needs change.

SPRAIN AND FRACTURE

A. K. writes; Does it take longer for an ankle sprain to heal than it does for a fracture?

REPLY

Not as a rule, unless complications set in. It is the neglected sprain that takes a long time to heal.

AS YOU LIKE IT

Mrs. L. writes: Is it any more nourishing to eat beef that is rare rather than if well done or medium?

REPLY

No. On the other hand, the longer beef is broiled, for example, the less fat it contains.

BIRTH CONTROL PILLS

G. V. writes: Are birth control pills effective in men?

REPLY

Yes, but not as effective as when given to women. The pills include Nilevar, Enovid, and testosterone.

PAINFUL BUNIONS

M. B. writes: I have had bunions for a long time but they never caused any pain until recently when a large blister formed on each. Should I open these blisters?

REPLY

No. There is an excellent operation for the corrections of bunions. Why not consult your physician and get rid of your discomfort forever?

CIRRHOSIS OF THE LIVER

V. N. writes: What symptoms would cirrhosis of the liver cause in a man of 61?

REPLY

Early symptoms are vague and variable. Loss of appetite, fatigue, weakness, and flushing of the face are typical. Later, the victim may develop swelling of the abdomen, shortness of breath, nausea, vomiting, and fever. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cirrhosis of the liver.

BRINY BEVERAGE

H. E. writes: Would it be safe to drink sea water?

REPLY

A few mouthfuls would do no harm but this fluid is too salty for daily consumption.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

They tell about a pistol-totin', rip-roarin' son-of-a-gun from the West who swaggered into a Broadway barbershop, waved a hundred-dollar bill in the air, announcing to all and sundry, "I'm payin' this C-note to the cayote who'll give me such a close shave that the gal I'm takin' out tonight won't feel a single whisker. But if said cayote so much as takes one tiny nick out o' my sensitive skin, I aims to shoot him dead. Now who'll volunteer?"

The barbers at the first six chairs turned pale and hastily looked the other way, but a barber at No. 7 chair called out calmly, "Step this way, Mister."

The shave was completed swiftly and neatly, and the Westerner handed over the big bill. "Confess," he chuckled, "that you were a wee mite nervous. If you'd-a nicked me, I really aimed to plug you, you know."

Barber No. 7 pocketed the bill and grinned. "It was really you who was on the hot seat," he nodded. "The second I nicked you, I'd have cut your throat!"

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

MIAMI, Fla. — There goes another birthday. It was the 53rd — 1,671,408,000 slow ticks of the clock. It requires that much to get from November, 1907 to here. If heredity means anything, I have quite a distance to go. The Bishops and the Tiers have pretty good mileage charts, although a few of them showed up at the cashier's window early.

What have I accomplished? Not much. There isn't a thing I have written, said or thought that hasn't been done better. The only thing I can say in my behalf is that I am an optimist and a romanticist — I'm one of those everything-is-going-to-turn-out-all-right men. If the missiles ever come, you'll find me out on the front porch watching. My last words will be: "See? Missed us again."

I won't part with the romanticism. I'm hooked. Roses, moonlight, poetry, an angry sea, the crisp rattle of leaves in the autumn, a feminine woman, Mantovani's music, even the inscription of an old tombstone, "Tread lightly and slow, She can hear the daisies grow," melts me down.

When that goes, I go. A news magazine once called me "an unabashed sentimentalist." Good. This is better, I hope, than being an abashed unsentimentalist. I'm more sentimental about children than any other type of human being, but I wouldn't trade places with them for anything. The adult world is best. Happy, carefree childhood is a figment of adult eyes. It just looks good from here.

My two girls are happily married. They are in bright new worlds, and dad stays outside. He has his own. For example, there was no time in my life, until now, that I could have come to this city for an extended stay. Today, with all responsibilities gone except love, I can mumble to myself: "My friend, where would you like to go next?"

Too much freedom, too, suddenly becomes its own worry. Now that I can go anywhere, I hesitate. I phone my father and say: "Everything all right?" I phone Ginny: "How are the babies?" I phone Gayle: "How are you and Frank doing?" The marks of the velvet handcuffs are on my wrists. The prisoner dreads to leave his cell.

If I have a pride, it is not as an author, but as a newspaper reporter. There is no love like the first girl. Newspapers have always been good to me and my pride is that, in 32 years, I have never written a story without trying to do my best. I tried to make my stuff shine, even when I knew it was going to die on an editor's spike.

To do less would have made me feel small. And, when a man is 5 feet 7½, he has a need to feel big. Still, I can remember stories when my best wasn't good enough. I picked up competitive newspapers in the morning, read their versions of what happened, and chewed my heart to tatters. This, too, is part of the game.

A defeat, in many instances, is much more important than a victory. I have never learned anything from winning. From the time, in the fourth grade, when Donald Gildea challenged me to a fight and knocked my block off, up to the refusal, last winter, of editors to publish a series of articles I had written on what life is going to be like in the year 2,000, I have gathered wisdom from wounds.

There is nothing I want from the world, except a chance to be heard now and then. I've got everything I need, and a little extra. Columns and books will take up my time. When I'm not working, I like to see a show, reread the works of the men I admire — Sandburg, Hemingway, Wilde — fill a glass for a friend, go to a new island off the edge of the horizon, sit with my brother and sister and swap lies, play Hollywood gin with Ray Stone, or listen to records.

I can't sit still. There is something inside that makes me want to keep in motion. There is always a new and exciting story to be written and I want to write it.

I like to bowl and play golf. I'm a poor left-hander at both, but I enjoy them, even when the golf is over 100 and the bowling is under. I get a big charge out of watching a good horse race, a tight ball game, a fight between agile heavyweights who keep their mind on their business.

The 1,671,408,000 ticks of the clock have added a few thousand more while I've been writing this. This is of no consequence. Let it rack up a few million more; I'm ahead of the game.

Do I have a philosophy? Of course I do. It is timeless and unchangeable: "Thy Will Be Done." . . .

Miami Meeting: A Hopeful Sign

That unprecedented display of cordiality and let-bygones-be-bygones the day before yesterday in Miami was as heartening as it was paradoxical. Senator John F. Kennedy, as President-elect of the United States, was paying a call to Vice President Richard M. Nixon, whom he had just defeated in a hard-fought campaign. The two men greeted each other warmly, talked privately for more than an hour, and posed in a friendly and relaxed scene for the photographers.

Only a little more than a week earlier, the Vice President had referred to the Senator as a "Pied Piper from Boston," who was "irresponsibly running down the country." The Senator was comparing the Vice President with an elephant "who has had to be led around by an escort." In short, the campaign was fairly typical of an American Presidential contest, in that there was a bit of biting in the clinches. We assume that the warm handshakes in Miami the other day patched up all of that, and we can thank our leaders for setting such a strong example of forgetting the past and looking toward the future, where there are problems enough.

Certainly this is a time for as much bigness as both sides can muster. Whether or not Mr. Kennedy, as President, will seek to form a bipartisan administration remains to be seen. He must move cautiously if he is not to lose the support of his own party by spreading the credit and the responsibility too thinly over a bipartisan arrangement. At the same time, Vice President Nixon naturally would have sincere reservations about any coalition government, lest he compromise his own prospective position as leader of an effective opposition party, not to mention his hopes for the Presidency in 1964.

In the meantime, the expressions of good will and the evidences of magnanimity all around are hopeful signs.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

It Costs Too Much

The most impressive fact about the recent tight election was that it cost too much in time, in money and in human energy. As for time, from the pre-primary effort, which started two years ago, to Election Day, men who should have been fully engaged at their work were chasing about the country seeking delegations, making deals, exhibiting themselves in the hope that they might be elected.

No one will ever know, not even the candidates, what the election actually cost. There will be formal reports but these will represent only a small share of the total. In the first place, there are all sorts of separate organizations and committees with which the candidates have little contact. These organizations are usually devised to make it possible for those who wish to contribute large sums to split them up. Also, there is much handling of cash money under the table. This can never be proved and that is why it is done that way.

There are always men who contribute to both parties and to a variety of candidates and committees. By this device, they make their way to Heaven no matter who is elected. (I am, of course, not limiting this discussion to Presidential candidates.)

There ought to be a law, such as the British have, limiting campaign expenditures. It is not significant if the law limits campaign income, because much of that can never be proved. For instance, labor unions can contribute to a campaign out of educational funds and labor unions do not need to account for their contributions as political. But expenditures can be found. The largest bills are for television and travel. These can be accounted for. If a rigid, inflexible figure were made law and an over-expenditure made a felony, the election could become honest. Certainly, as it is, no man who does not have access to unusually enormous sums of money can be elected to the Presidency.

The time to discuss this is now when nobody is running for office and when no partisanship is involved. Even the reported figures for this election, when they shall be published, will be disgraceful and should be thoroughly investigated. The Roman Empire collapsed when public office went to the highest bidder. We do not want to reach that estate here.

As for time, it would seem that one month of campaigning is enough, if not too much. Only the television companies gain by prolonged campaigning and they only gain if they can sell non-sponsored time to a large number of stations. Otherwise, the prolonged campaign benefits nobody and is, in fact, a bore. After the first three or four speeches, it is all repetitious. It got so that I could make the Nixon and Kennedy speeches by heart. The candidates themselves must have been bored by the repetition of the same slogans, the identical run of words, none of them meaning very much but all of which had to be said with vehemence and vigor.

It would seem to me if the campaign were cut down to one month by law, all candidates would be exultant. They would perhaps have the time to write their own speeches and even to think about what they say. They would say what they mean. They would not be reading documents which they had never seen before, written by persons who had, on their own account, achieved slight or no distinction as public figures or philosophers. Most speechwriters are inexpert persons on the fringe of public relations or in the professional disciplines. Most of them never achieve any stature and have only memories of "making other men."

A month of speech-making is ample. I think that if there were a week of silence just before Election Day, it would be very beneficial. The people could then make up their minds without the cacophony of political speeches. They might sit back and read what had been said. They might analyze what had been said. They might read the Party Platforms or they might do nothing about it at all, depending upon their subconscious to guide them a-right.

Surely that would be better than the present preposterous method when the candidates talk so much that they drown in a sea of words.

White House Had An Air Of Gloom On Morning After Nixon's Defeat

By Jack Anderson

(Editor's Note — Drew Pearson is traveling. In his absence today's column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.

WASHINGTON — The dramatic story can now be told of what happened inside the White House the morning Dwight D. Eisenhower became a lame-duck President.

He had gone to bed at 10:30 on election night without knowing who might succeed him. He had left two telegrams with Press Secretary Jim Hagerty—one warmly congratulating Dick Nixon, the other tersely congratulating Jack Kennedy—for dispatch to the victor.

Next morning, Hagerty still held both wires. He explained to the President that Nixon apparently had lost, but hadn't yet conceded.

For one whose own prestige and popularity had been laid on the line, Ike accepted the verdict calmly. His face, which always mirrors his mood, registered gloom. But all he said was: "Awful rough to lose."

He repeated the remark to other White House aides who stopped by to commiserate. He reminisced briefly about his part in the campaign, took some solace in the memory of the frenzied crowds that cheered him in Pittsburgh.

Later he strode into the Cabinet room for a special, historic Cabinet meeting to discuss the transfer of power to his successor.

Without a word, he settled into the President's chair. Those around the long, polished table bowed their heads for the customary silent prayer.

Secret Cabinet Minutes

Then Ike said soberly: "Well, the people have made their choice. It is too bad we didn't win, but our responsibility is to see that the government continues."

He read the telegram he intended to send to Kennedy.

"Dick hasn't conceded yet," Ike added. "I'm going to hold this until we're sure."

He commented that the election had been "awfully close."

"It looks as if Illinois will still go for Dick," he said.

Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield launched into a postmortem analysis of the election. He blamed the GOP loss principally upon the sleeves-up work of the labor unions. He suggested that the Republicans could win labor support if they would fight for it. He cited the example of Congressman Charles Chamberlain, Michigan Republican, who he claimed was re-elected with workingmen's votes.

But the President cut Summerfield short.

"Arthur," Ike interrupted, "I think this is just too premature. This is not the time nor place to consider the implications of the election."

Then he got down to the business for which he had called the Cabinet together.

"Transfer," Not "Transition"

"We have the problem of transition," he began.

Then he corrected himself.

"It shouldn't be called 'transition'. It should be called 'transfer'," he said. "I want to talk about transfer, not transition."

He described how his own liaison man, Joseph Dodge, had performed during the takeover from the Truman administration. Dodge simply listened, took careful notes, but kept out of the deliberations.

"I assume Kennedy will follow the same procedure," Ike said.

GOP National Chairman Thruston Morton, who sat in on the Cabinet meeting, recalled that he had served as liaison man in the State Department during the 1952 transfer.

"I didn't work on policy matters," he reported. "I studied procedures and structure."

"I think," suggested the President, "that any contact between the old and new administrations should be at the Secretary level."

He reminded the Cabinet that he was still President until January 20. Then he took up some routine business and hastily adjourned the historic meeting. He was in a hurry to get to Augusta, he explained, to play golf.

THE GREAT GOLD MYSTERY—Central Intelligence agents have picked up evidence that the Russians are secretly attempting to manipulate the gold market. This may have helped cause the recent gold crisis, which has drained off our gold reserves. Intelligence Chief Allen Dulles was so alarmed that he made a secret trip overseas to check personally on the Communist gold manipulation.

MALENKOV vs. KHRUSHCHEV—The phony report that ex-Premier Georgi Malenkov had ousted Nikita Khrushchev and taken over the Kremlin again wasn't without some foundation. Malenkov was banished by Khrushchev two years ago to a hydroelectric power station in Siberia. But the American Embassy reports that Malenkov appears to be making a comeback. He now wields more than electric power inside the Communist hierarchy and may be in a position to challenge Khrushchev. American experts believe Khrushchev would remain the front man, however, even if stripped of his power. His removal might make the Soviet government appear too unstable.

Party Unity And Kennedy's Appointments

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

The main decision Sen. Kennedy made as the immediate aftermath of his victory, was to make no further decisions at all until he had had a rest. His staff began to press for answers to a thousand questions, as staffs will. He told them, reportedly, that he was dizzy with the fatigue of the campaign, and would therefore give no answers until he returns from Florida.

Thus he went off for his vacation with every basic issue unresolved, except for his announcement that he was asking Allen Dulles and J. Edgar Hoover to continue at their posts. I won't part with the romanticism. I'm hooked. Roses, moonlight, poetry, an angry sea, the crisp rattle of leaves in the autumn, a feminine woman, Mantovani's music, even the inscription of an old tombstone. "Tread lightly and slow, She can hear the daisies grow," melts me down.

When that goes, I go. A news magazine once called me "an unabashed sentimentalist." Good. This is better, I hope, than being an abashed unsentimentalist. I'm more sentimental about children than any other type of human being, but I wouldn't trade places with them for anything. The adult world is best. Happy, carefree childhood is a figment of adult eyes. It just looks good from here.

My two girls are happily married. They are in bright new worlds, and dad stays outside. He has his own. For example, there was no time in my life, until now, that I could have come to this city for an extended stay. Today, with all responsibilities gone except love, I can mumble to myself: "My friend, where would you like to go next?"

Too much freedom, too, suddenly becomes its own worry. Now that I can go anywhere, I hesitate. I phone my father and say: "Everything all right?" I phone Ginny: "How are the babies?" I phone Gayle: "How are you and Frank doing?" The marks of the velvet handcuffs are on my wrists. The prisoner dreads to leave his cell.

If I have a pride, it is not as an author, but as a newspaper reporter. There is no love like the first girl. Newspapers have always been good to me and my pride is that, in 32 years. I have never written a story without trying to do my best. I tried to make my stuff shine, even when I knew it was going to die on an editor's spike.

To do less would have made me feel small. And, when a man is 5 feet 7½, he has a need to feel big. Still, I can remember stories when my best wasn't good enough. I picked up competitive newspapers in the morning, read their versions of what happened, and chewed my heart to tatters. This, too, is part of the game.

A defeat, in many instances, is much more important than a victory. I have never learned anything from winning. From the time, in the fourth grade, when Donald Gildea challenged me to a fight and knocked my block off, up to the refusal, last winter, of editors to publish a series of articles I had written on what life is going to be like in the year 2,000, I have gathered wisdom from wounds.

There is nothing I want from the world, except a chance to be heard now and then. I've got everything I need, and a little extra. Columns and books will take up my time. When I'm not working, I like to see a show, reread the works of the men I admire — Sandburg, Hemingway, Wilde — fill a glass for a friend, go to a new island off the edge of the horizon, sit with my brother and sister and swap lies, play Hollywood gin with Ray Stone, or listen to records.

I can't sit still. There is something inside that makes me want to keep in motion. There is always a new and exciting story to be written and I want to write it.

I like to bowl and play golf. I'm a poor left-hander at both, but I enjoy them, even when the golf is over 100 and the bowling is under. I get a big charge out of watching a good horse race, a tight ball game, a fight between agile heavyweights who keep their mind on their business.

The 1,671,408,000 ticks of the clock have added a few thousand more while I've been writing this. This is of no consequence. Let it rack up a few million more; I'm ahead of the game.

Do I have a philosophy? Of course I do. It is timeless and unchangeable: "Thy Will Be Done." . . .

Jet Plane Mechanics Should Wear Earmuffs

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Those who jet to their destination ride in quiet and comfort but the men who service the ships have to contend with noise and fuel vapors. These are the chief health hazards to those working on jets, according to D. C. Murphy of Esso Petroleum Co., Ltd.

Noise intensity is measured in decibels and is calculated on a sound level meter. The slightest noise heard by a healthy young person is defined as 0 decibel. The level must go up to 140 decibels before it becomes painful. Ordinary speech is 60 decibels, whereas the background noise in a residential area at night is only 40. This may explain why a conversation between several persons on the sidewalks at night sounds so loud.

A car horn registers 114 decibels at 3 feet, a pneumatic drill 120, and a large pneumatic riveter 125 at 4 feet. A 50 horsepower victory siren at 100 feet is close to the top — 138.

Where does the jet fit into the pattern? The running engine in a test control room moves the level up to 118. When the sound meter is placed 80 feet from the jet at takeoff, it registers 130 or better—almost as high as the victory siren.

Mechanics and service men may not be bothered as yet but if they are to continue working in this noisy atmosphere for any length of time, they should wear ear protectors and have hearing tests at regular intervals.

Ear plugs are made of rubber, soft or hard plastic, or cotton. They must fit properly to screen out most of the noise and to prevent irritation. Makeshift protectors usually are unsatisfactory. Earmuffs are excellent because they are easily applied and can be removed quickly when the noise ceases.

TOMORROW: Our hospital needs change.

SPRAIN AND FRACTURE

A. K. writes: Does it take longer for an ankle sprain to heal than it does for a fracture?

REPLY

Not as a rule, unless complications set in. It is the neglected sprain that takes a long time to heal.

AS YOU LIKE IT

Mrs. L. writes: Is it any more nourishing to eat beef that is rare rather than if well done or medium?

REPLY

No. On the other hand, the longer beef is broiled, for example, the less fat it contains.

BIRTH CONTROL PILLS

G. V. writes: Are birth control pills effective in men?

REPLY

Yes, but not as effective as when given to women. The pills include Nilevar, Enovid, and testosterone.

PAINFUL BUNIONS

M. B. writes: I have had bunions for a long time but they never caused any pain until recently when a large blister formed on each. Should I open these blisters?

REPLY

No. There is an excellent operation for the corrections of bunions. Why not consult your physician and get rid of your discomfort forever?

CIRRHOSIS OF THE LIVER

V. N. writes: What symptoms would cirrhosis of the liver cause in a man of 61?

REPLY

Early symptoms are vague and variable. Loss of appetite, fatigue, weakness, and flushing of the face are typical. Later, the victim may develop swelling of the abdomen, shortness of breath, nausea, vomiting, and fever. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on cirrhosis of the liver.

BRINY BEVERAGE

H. E. writes: Would it be safe to drink sea water?

REPLY

A few mouthfuls would do no harm but this fluid is too salty for daily consumption.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

They tell about a pistol-totin', rip-roarin' son-of-a-gun from the West who swaggered into a Broadway barbershop, waved a hundred-dollar bill in the air, announcing to all and sundry, "I'm payin' this C-note to the cayote who'll give me such a close shave that the gal I'm takin' out tonight won't feel a single whisker. But if said cayote so much as takes one tiny nick out o' my sensitive skin, I aims to shoot him dead. Now who'll volunteer?"

The barbers at the first six chairs turned pale and hastily looked the other way, but a barber at No. 7 chair called out calmly, "Step this way, Mister."

The shave was completed swiftly and neatly, and the Westerner handed over the big bill. "Confess," he chuckled, "that you were a wee mite nervous. If you'd-a nicked me, I really aimed to plug you, you know."

Barber No. 7 pocketed the bill and grinned. "It was really you who was on the hot seat," he nodded. "The second I nicked you, I'd have cut your throat!"

You're Telling Me

By William Ritt

A bill which would curb use of foreign comic cartoons in Argentine newspapers was flatly rejected by that nation's legislature. The sensible salons took one look at that idea and then—Pow!

An acre of good meadowland, according to an agriculture article, may have an insect population of more than 15 million! What's so all-fired good about that?

Paul Richards Becomes Highest Paid Baseball Manager

Texan Signs 3-Year Pact With Birds

To Receive $50,000 Annually; Led 2nd Place Club In 1960

By MALCOLM ALLEN
United Press International

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Paul Richards, the lean Texan who built the Baltimore Orioles from a chronic second - division team into an amazing contender for the 1960 American League pennant, Tuesday signed a three - year $50,000-a-year contract that makes him the highest paid manager in baseball.

Lee MacPhail, president and general manager of the Orioles, said the Orioles "are extremely happy to have ensured ourselves and the fans of Baltimore of his services for at least another three years," and added—"I happen to think that Paul is the best manager in baseball."

Richards, in Baltimore, said that he viewed the Orioles' future with "great hope."

"I have said before, and will say again, that I am happy to remain in Baltimore as long as my services are in demand," said Richards. "My relationship with Lee MacPhail has been excellent, and the performances of some of our younger players has given me great hope.

Youngsters Impress

"I have seen our Scottsdale club in action in the Arizona Instructional League and I feel that some of these youngsters will be a great help in the not far distant future," he added.

Richards, who also will receive five cents for each customer that the Orioles draw over the 800,000 mark for the three years of the contract, replaces ex - New York manager Casey Stengel as the game' highest - paid manager. The Orioles drew 1,187,849 fans at home during the 1960 season.

"This should silence once and for all the rumors that Paul will not be back with us next year," said MacPhail, taking note of various reports that had Richards headed for other managerial posts.

Richards, a native of Waxahachie, Tex., who will be 52 years old next Monday, had one year to go on his existing contract that called for $45,000 a year plus fringe benefits.

Birds Finished Second

Richards, long noted as one of the games' top managers, astonished the baseball world this year by leading the young inexperienced Orioles to a second-place finish, the highest in their modern history. The Orioles trailed the pennant-winning Yankees by only one percentage point as late as Sept. 16 when they started a crucial series with New York. The Yankees swept the four-game test and went on to their 10th flag in 12 years under Stengel.

Richards was named the American Leagues' manager of the year by the United Press International in recognition of his brilliant performance.

Halas Charges Moore Fouled On Winning TD

Upholds Argument With Film Clips

CHICAGO (UPI)—Coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears charged Tuesday night that the Baltimore Colts' winning touchdown in their 24-20 victory over the Bears Sunday was illegal because Lennie Moore fouled defensive back J. C. Caroline.

Halas showed film clips of the play to uphold his argument.

The pictures showed clearly that Caroline was running with Moore going into the end zone and that Moore took his eyes off the ball, pushed Caroline with his left arm and elbow, knocking him down before Moore caught the pass from Johnny Unitas in the end zone.

Halas said there is not the slightest doubt that Moore committed a foul.

"Had it been detected, the Colts would have been penalized to their 46-yard line and they would have had fourth down with 29 yards to go and only 17 seconds left to play," he said.

"As a conservative estimate, the odds are 1,000 to 1 Unitas could not have hit on a touchdown pass from the 46-yard line — which is where the Colts should have been instead of lining up to kick the extra point after the illegal touchdown."

Halas said he had not decided whether he would make an official protest, but said he would inform National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle of his opinion.

Youth Admits Taking $1,250 In Fix Attempt

Silber Testifies In Bribery Trial

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—A former University of Florida student testified Tuesday he received $1,250 for the part he played in an alleged attempt to "fix" a college football game here in September.

Philip Silber, 19, of New York, was the first witness in the bribery trial of Aaron Wagman, 27, also of New York. A packed courtroom watched while Silber took the stand.

In a shaky voice, Silber told how he introduced Wagman to Florida fullback Jon MacBeth on Aug. 22 at MacBeth's dormitory room. He said he also was present when the New Yorker handed MacBeth $1,500 to shave points in the Florida-Florida State football game, Sept. 24.

MacBeth pretended to go along with the alleged scheme, but told the whole story to college authorities on the morning after the initial contact. Police credited him with a major role in foiling the attempted fix.

Silber, who had been scheduled to stand trial with Wagman, changed his plea from innocent to guilty in a surprise move Monday afternoon. He remained free under $5,000 bond pending a presentence investigation.

Welters Matched

Five Major Clubs Will Not Take Part In Draft Nov. 28

Yankees, Pirates Among The Clubs With Full Rosters

NEW YORK (UPI)—A few old World Series heroes and many journeyman ex - major leaguers will be up for grabs at $25,000 each in the annual baseball draft Nov. 28, but this year no bonus babies are available at bargain basement prices.

Dusty Rhodes, Sandy Amoros and Chuck Essegian are among the hundreds of players on minor league rosters who are subject to the draft which will start the baseball meetings at Louisville, Ky.

The largest number which can be selected this year is 27 players. Five of the major league clubs have filled their 40-man rosters and will not draft. The other 11 teams have a total of 23 spots open.

Proposes Participation

Commissioner Ford Frick also has proposed that the two New American League franchises, at Washington and at Los Angeles, be permitted to participate in the draft.

If his proposal is passed by American League owners at their meeting in New York Thursday, each of the new clubs will be permitted to draft two players after the existing eight teams have completed their selections. The new teams will not be permitted to take more than one player from any minor league club nor draft any first-year (bonus) player.

Will Choose First

The Philadelphia Phillies, last-place finishers in the National League, will have first pick. The Kansas City Athletics, who finished last in the American League, will select next and then the draft will alternate between leagues in the inverse order of the 1960 standings.

Among the former major leaguers subject to the draft are Rhodes, who set a World Series pinch-hitting record for the New York Giants in 1954 and now is on the Tacoma (Wash.) roster; Essegian, who hit two home runs for the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1959 series, and Amoros, who saved the 1955 series for the Brooklyn Dodgers with a spectacular catch. Essegian is on the Spokane (Wash.) roster and Amoros belongs to the Denver Bears.

Have Full Rosters

The New York Yankees in the American League, and the St. Louis Cardinals, Dodgers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Milwaukee Braves in the National have full rosters and will not take part in the draft.

The Chicago White Sox have four places open on their roster, the Athletics and Washington Senators three each; the Cincinnati Reds, Phillies, Baltimore Orioles, Chicago Cubs and Boston Red Sox two each, and the Giants, Indians and Detroit Tigers one each.

Youngsters Impress

"I have seen our Scottsdale club in action in the Arizona Instructional League and I feel that some of these youngsters will be a great help in the not far distant future," he added.

Richards, who also will receive five cents for each customer that the Orioles draw over the 800,000 mark for the three years of the contract, replaces ex - New York manager Casey Stengel as the game' highest - paid manager. The Orioles drew 1,187,849 fans at home during the 1960 season.

"This should silence once and for all the rumors that Paul will not be back with us next year," said MacPhail, taking note of various reports that had Richards headed for other managerial posts.

Richards, a native of Waxahachie, Tex., who will be 52 years old next Monday, had one year to go on his existing contract that called for $45,000 a year plus fringe benefits.

Birds Finished Second

Richards, long noted as one of the games' top managers, astonished the baseball world this year by leading the young inexperienced Orioles to a second-place finish, the highest in their modern history. The Orioles trailed the pennant-winning Yankees by only one percentage point as late as Sept. 16 when they started a crucial series with New York. The Yankees swept the four-game test and went on to their 10th flag in 12 years under Stengel.

Richards was named the American Leagues' manager of the year by the United Press International in recognition of his brilliant performance.

Five Major Clubs Will Not Take Part In Draft Nov. 28

Yankees, Pirates Among The Clubs With Full Rosters

NEW YORK (UPI)—A few old World Series heroes and many journeyman ex - major leaguers will be up for grabs at $25,000 each in the annual baseball draft Nov. 28, but this year no bonus babies are available at bargain basement prices.

Dusty Rhodes, Sandy Amoros and Chuck Essegian are among the hundreds of players on minor league rosters who are subject to the draft which will start the baseball meetings at Louisville, Ky.

The largest number which can be selected this year is 27 players. Five of the major league clubs have filled their 40-man rosters and will not draft. The other 11 teams have a total of 23 spots open.

Proposes Participation

Commissioner Ford Frick also has proposed that the two New American League franchises, at Washington and at Los Angeles, be permitted to participate in the draft.

If his proposal is passed by American League owners at their meeting in New York Thursday, each of the new clubs will be permitted to draft two players after the existing eight teams have completed their selections. The new teams will not be permitted to take more than one player from any minor league club nor draft any first-year (bonus) player.

Will Choose First

The Philadelphia Phillies, last-place finishers in the National League, will have first pick. The Kansas City Athletics, who finished last in the American League, will select next and then the draft will alternate between leagues in the inverse order of the 1960 standings.

Among the former major leaguers subject to the draft are Rhodes, who set a World Series pinch-hitting record for the New York Giants in 1954 and now is on the Tacoma (Wash.) roster; Essegian, who hit two home runs for the Los Angeles Dodgers in the 1959 series, and Amoros, who saved the 1955 series for the Brooklyn Dodgers with a spectacular catch. Essegian is on the Spokane (Wash.) roster and Amoros belongs to the Denver Bears.

Have Full Rosters

The New York Yankees in the American League, and the St. Louis Cardinals, Dodgers, Pittsburgh Pirates and Milwaukee Braves in the National have full rosters and will not take part in the draft.

The Chicago White Sox have four places open on their roster, the Athletics and Washington Senators three each; the Cincinnati Reds, Phillies, Baltimore Orioles, Chicago Cubs and Boston Red Sox two each, and the Giants, Indians and Detroit Tigers one each.

Royals Triumph

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Oscar Robertson outscored Wilt Chamberlain, 44 points to 36, Tuesday night to lead the Cincinnati Royals to a 124-115 victory that ended a three - season string of 13 consecutive losses they had suffered at the hands of the Philadelphia Warriors.

Baylor Scores 71

NEW YORK (UPI)—Elgin Baylor scored 71 points Tuesday night, breaking his own National Basketball Association single game record, in leading the Los Angeles Lakers to a 123-108 victory over the New York Knickerbockers in the second game of a double-header at Madison Square Garden.

Halas Charges Moore Fouled On Winning TD

Upholds Argument With Film Clips

CHICAGO (UPI)—Coach George Halas of the Chicago Bears charged Tuesday night that the Baltimore Colts' winning touchdown in their 24-20 victory over the Bears Sunday was illegal because Lennie Moore fouled defensive back J. C. Caroline.

Halas showed film clips of the play to uphold his argument.

The pictures showed clearly that Caroline was running with Moore going into the end zone and that Moore took his eyes off the ball, pushed Caroline with his left arm and elbow, knocking him down before Moore caught the pass from Johnny Unitas in the end zone.

Halas said there is not the slightest doubt that Moore committed a foul.

"Had it been detected, the Colts would have been penalized to their 46-yard line and they would have had fourth down with 29 yards to go and only 17 seconds left to play," he said.

"As a conservative estimate, the odds are 1,000 to 1 Unitas could not have hit on a touchdown pass from the 46-yard line — which is where the Colts should have been instead of lining up to kick the extra point after the illegal touchdown."

Halas said he had not decided whether he would make an official protest, but said he would inform National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle of his opinion.

Youth Admits Taking $1,250 In Fix Attempt

Silber Testifies In Bribery Trial

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—A former University of Florida student testified Tuesday he received $1,250 for the part he played in an alleged attempt to "fix" a college football game here in September.

Philip Silber, 19, of New York, was the first witness in the bribery trial of Aaron Wagman, 27, also of New York. A packed courtroom watched while Silber took the stand.

In a shaky voice, Silber told how he introduced Wagman to Florida fullback Jon MacBeth on Aug. 22 at MacBeth's dormitory room. He said he also was present when the New Yorker handed MacBeth $1,500 to shave points in the Florida-Florida State football game, Sept. 24.

MacBeth pretended to go along with the alleged scheme, but told the whole story to college authorities on the morning after the initial contact. Police credited him with a major role in foiling the attempted fix.

Silber, who had been scheduled to stand trial with Wagman, changed his plea from innocent to guilty in a surprise move Monday afternoon. He remained free under $5,000 bond pending a presentence investigation.

Missouri, Iowa, Duke And Ohio State Picked To Win

Penn State, Pitt Contest Rated Even

Minnesota Given Edge Over Badgers; Auburn Favorite

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-ranked Missouri, which hopes to wrap up the Big Eight title, an Orange Bowl berth and the national college football championship this Saturday, was made a 7 point favorite Tuesday to achieve all three goals against Kansas.

Missouri, already assured of its best season in 51 years after winning nine straight games, was picked by oddsmakers along with seven of the other top 10 teams which play this Saturday. Second-ranked Mississippi and seventh-ranked Navy are idle.

Iowa Over Irish

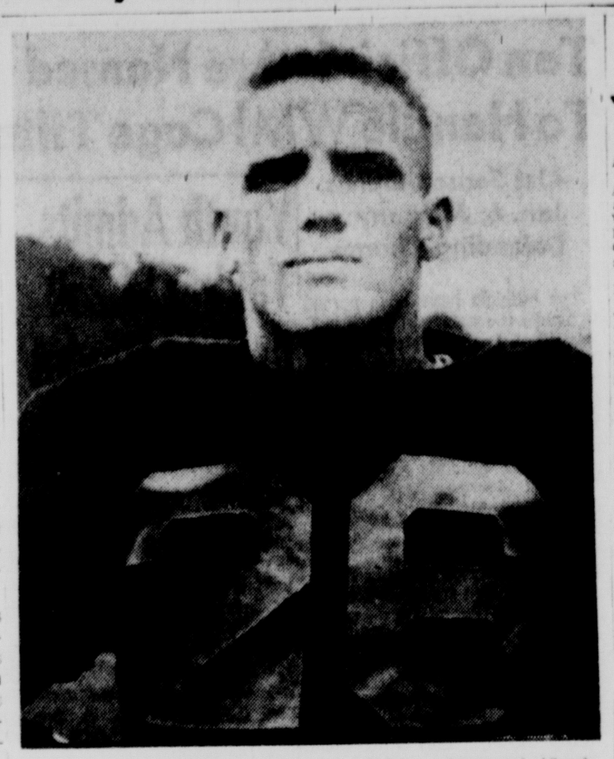
Third-ranked Iowa, which can win the Big Ten title and an almost sure Rose Bowl berth against Washington, was picked by 14 points over Notre Dame, beaten in seven straight games, while fourth-ranked Minnesota was made a 7 point pick over Wisconsin.

Fifth-ranked Washington, which clinched the Big Five title and a return trip to the Rose Bowl last Saturday, was picked by 13 over Washington State; sixth-ranked Duke, in the running for a bowl berth, was picked by 14 over North Carolina; eighth-ranked Arkansas, the Southwest Conference leader, was picked by 8 over Texas Tech; ninth-ranked Ohio State by 7½ over Michigan, and 10th ranked Auburn by 16 over Florida State.

All but Duke and Auburn complete their season Saturday.

Two-Pick 'Em Games

There are two-pick 'em games on the program — Pittsburgh vs. Penn State and Oregon State vs. Oregon. In other expected close games, Tennessee is picked by a ½ point over Kentucky, Oklahoma State ½ over Colorado, Illinois ½ over Northwestern, Tulane ½ over Vanderbilt, Colgate 1 over Brown and Princeton 3 over Dartmouth.



PACED PVC SCORERS—Charles Bradfield, sophomore halfback of Keyser High School, led the scorers of the Potomac Valley Conference for the 1960 season with a total of 53 points. He scored eight touchdowns and five extra points in five games. Bradfield is the sixth Keyser player in the last nine years to cop individual scoring honors. "Chuck" wound up the campaign with 11 touchdowns and six conversions for a total of 72 points and now holds second place in the area scoring race.

St. Louis Group's $3.5 Million Offer Accepted For A's

CHICAGO (AP)—An offer of $3.5 million for the Kansas City Athletics baseball club was accepted from a St. Louis group Tuesday by Probate Judge Robert J. Dunne.

Judge Dunne is expected to sign the formal order Wednesday of the sale of stock owned by Mrs. Warren W. Humes, remarried widow of Arnold Johnson who owned 52 per cent of the club's stock. Johnson died last March 10.

Mrs. Humes and the City National Bank of Chicago, co-executors of Johnson's estate, have been at odds over what should be done with the baseball stock.

Mrs. Humes wanted to keep the stock but the bank wanted to sell in order to pay $1.5 million debts and taxes owned by Johnson.

Last Monday, Judge Dunne ruled that the Cook County Probate Court had jurisdiction in the case before continuing the hearings.

Toledo Plane Crash Brings Damage Suits

$75,000 Is Sought For Injured Youths

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — Two $75,000 damage suits have been filed here in behalf of two youths injured in the airplane crash that killed 16 Cal Poly football players Oct. 29.

The San Francisco attorney firm of Belli, Ashe and Gerry filed the suits on behalf of Robert Johnson and Carl Bowser. Named as defendants in the suit were the Trans-Air and Arctic Airlines Pacific airlines and other concerns, including manufacturers of the airplane.

"We anticipate filing damage suits on behalf of at least five others injured in the crash," said attorney Richard Gerry. "And the relatives of some of those killed also have talked to us about filing suits."

Gerry said he understood that the Arctic Pacific Airline, which now is under suspension, had insurance of "at least" $50,000 a seat for everyone on the plane. Twenty-two persons were killed when the plane crashed at Toledo, Ohio, airport. The Cal Poly football players were returning from a game with Bowling Green. It was the first major air crash involving a flying college football team.

The plane, a chartered C46, was "not airworthy," the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) charged in Washington. The FAA made these charges:

—The plane exceeded by 2,000 pounds the maximum takeoff load weight.

—The flight took off despite information that weather conditions were far below the authorized minimum for a C46 instrument take-off at Toledo.

—Capt. Donald John Chescher and first officer Harold Perovich, pilots of the aircraft, had been on duty Oct. 27 and Oct. 28 in excess of the maximum hours permitted by government regulations.

The accident took place the next night.

Scheffing May Land Managerial Job At Detroit

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Scheffing, the burly ex-catcher who managed a mediocre band of Chicago Cubs to three also-ran finishes but is regarded as a top baseball strategist, will be named the 1961 manager of the Detroit Tigers, United Press International learned Tuesday.

Scheffing got the nod after Tiger officials had considered a list of candidates President John Fetzer said was "as long as your arm." Casey Stengel had been Detroit's first choice, but turned it down.

During the 1960 season Scheffing was a coach for the Milwaukee Braves under Charley Dressen.

In Detroit, Fetzer commented that the UPI report was "premature." However, informed Tiger sources had said only Monday that Scheffing was "probably the best man now available for the job."

Scheffing, 45, came up to the Cubs as a catcher in 1941 but then lost three years in military service. After World War II he was a big league backstop for the Cubs, Cincinnati Reds, and St. Louis Cardinals.

He managed the Los Angeles Angels to fourth place in the Pacific Coast League in 1955 and then won the PCL pennant in 1956. In 1956 he was moved up to the parent Cubs, succeeding Stan Hack as manager.

Missouri, Iowa, Duke And Ohio State Picked To Win

Penn State, Pitt Contest Rated Even

Minnesota Given Edge Over Badgers; Auburn Favorite

NEW YORK (UPI) — Top-ranked Missouri, which hopes to wrap up the Big Eight title, an Orange Bowl berth and the national college football championship this Saturday, was made a 7 point favorite Tuesday to achieve all three goals against Kansas.

Missouri, already assured of its best season in 51 years after winning nine straight games, was picked by oddsmakers along with seven of the other top 10 teams which play this Saturday. Second-ranked Mississippi and seventh-ranked Navy are idle.

Iowa Over Irish

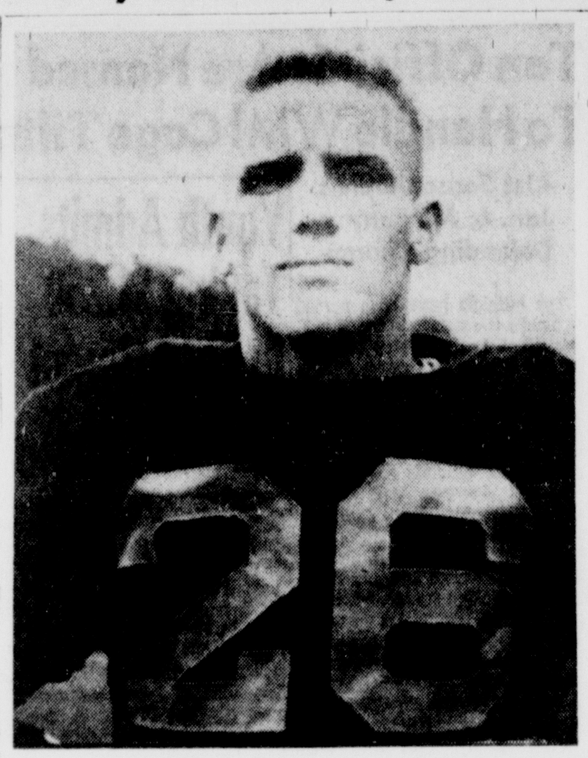
Third-ranked Iowa, which can win the Big Ten title and an almost sure Rose Bowl berth against Washington, was picked by 14 points over Notre Dame, beaten in seven straight games, while fourth-ranked Minnesota was made a 7 point pick over Wisconsin.

Fifth-ranked Washington, which clinched the Big Five title and a return trip to the Rose Bowl last Saturday, was picked by 13 over Washington State; sixth-ranked Duke, in the running for a bowl berth, was picked by 14 over North Carolina; eighth-ranked Arkansas, the Southwest Conference leader, was picked by 8 over Texas Tech; ninth-ranked Ohio State by 7½ over Michigan, and 10th ranked Auburn by 16 over Florida State.

All but Duke and Auburn complete their season Saturday.

Two-Pick 'Em Games

There are two-pick 'em games on the program — Pittsburgh vs. Penn State and Oregon State vs. Oregon. In other expected close games, Tennessee is picked by a ½ point over Kentucky, Oklahoma State ½ over Colorado, Illinois ½ over Northwestern, Tulane ½ over Vanderbilt, Colgate 1 over Brown and Princeton 3 over Dartmouth.



PACED PVC SCORERS—Charles Bradfield, sophomore halfback of Keyser High School, led the scorers of the Potomac Valley Conference for the 1960 season with a total of 53 points. He scored eight touchdowns and five extra points in five games. Bradfield is the sixth Keyser player in the last nine years to cop individual scoring honors. "Chuck" wound up the campaign with 11 touchdowns and six conversions for a total of 72 points and now holds second place in the area scoring race.

Toledo Plane Crash Brings Damage Suits

$75,000 Is Sought For Injured Youths

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — Two $75,000 damage suits have been filed here in behalf of two youths injured in the airplane crash that killed 16 Cal Poly football players Oct. 29.

The San Francisco attorney firm of Belli, Ashe and Gerry filed the suits on behalf of Robert Johnson and Carl Bowser. Named as defendants in the suit were the Trans-Air and Arctic Airlines Pacific airlines and other concerns, including manufacturers of the airplane.

"We anticipate filing damage suits on behalf of at least five others injured in the crash," said attorney Richard Gerry. "And the relatives of some of those killed also have talked to us about filing suits."

Gerry said he understood that the Arctic Pacific Airline, which now is under suspension, had insurance of "at least" $50,000 a seat for everyone on the plane. Twenty-two persons were killed when the plane crashed at Toledo, Ohio, airport. The Cal Poly football players were returning from a game with Bowling Green. It was the first major air crash involving a flying college football team.

The plane, a chartered C46, was "not airworthy," the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) charged in Washington. The FAA made these charges:

—The plane exceeded by 2,000 pounds the maximum takeoff load weight.

—The flight took off despite information that weather conditions were far below the authorized minimum for a C46 instrument take-off at Toledo.

—Capt. Donald John Chescher and first officer Harold Perovich, pilots of the aircraft, had been on duty Oct. 27 and Oct. 28 in excess of the maximum hours permitted by government regulations.

The accident took place the next night.

Scheffing May Land Managerial Job At Detroit

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bob Scheffing, the burly ex-catcher who managed a mediocre band of Chicago Cubs to three also-ran finishes but is regarded as a top baseball strategist, will be named the 1961 manager of the Detroit Tigers, United Press International learned Tuesday.

Scheffing got the nod after Tiger officials had considered a list of candidates President John Fetzer said was "as long as your arm." Casey Stengel had been Detroit's first choice, but turned it down.

During the 1960 season Scheffing was a coach for the Milwaukee Braves under Charley Dressen.

In Detroit, Fetzer commented that the UPI report was "premature." However, informed Tiger sources had said only Monday that Scheffing was "probably the best man now available for the job."

Scheffing, 45, came up to the Cubs as a catcher in 1941 but then lost three years in military service. After World War II he was a big league backstop for the Cubs, Cincinnati Reds, and St. Louis Cardinals.

He managed the Los Angeles Angels to fourth place in the Pacific Coast League in 1955 and then won the PCL pennant in 1956. In 1956 he was moved up to the parent Cubs, succeeding Stan Hack as manager.

St. Louis Group's $3.5 Million Offer Accepted For A's

CHICAGO (AP)—An offer of $3.5 million for the Kansas City Athletics baseball club was accepted from a St. Louis group Tuesday by Probate Judge Robert J. Dunne.

Judge Dunne is expected to sign the formal order Wednesday of the sale of stock owned by Mrs. Warren W. Humes, remarried widow of Arnold Johnson who owned 52 per cent of the club's stock. Johnson died last March 10.

Mrs. Humes and the City National Bank of Chicago, co-executors of Johnson's estate, have been at odds over what should be done with the baseball stock.

Mrs. Humes wanted to keep the stock but the bank wanted to sell in order to pay $1.5 million debts and taxes owned by Johnson.

Last Monday, Judge Dunne ruled that the Cook County Probate Court had jurisdiction in the case before continuing the hearings.

Dale Evans Leads W.V.U. In Offense

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Quarterback Dale Evans apparently has clinched total offense honors on the West Virginia University football squad, racking up 531 yards rushing and passing.

Evans has completed 31 of 76 passes for 453 yards and one touchdown. The junior signal caller has also gained 78 yards rushing.

Terps Play Rutgers

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Rutgers soccer team, unbeaten in 10 games, was named Tuesday to play Maryland in the first round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships next Monday at New Brunswick, N.J.

Elliott Runs Half Mile In 1:54.3

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP)—Herb Elliott, world champion miler, ran the half mile in 1:54.3 Tuesday in his first track event for Cambridge University.

The Australian Olympic gold medalist was 30 yards ahead of his nearest rival in the freshman (new students) meet with Oxford.

Boadicea was a British queen in the time of the Emperor Nero. She led a gallant but unsuccessful revolt against the Roman rulers.

"Glamor" Stocks Carry Load As Market Climbs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "glamor" stocks proved worthy of their name Tuesday as the high-flyers carried a depressed stock market to a firm finish on rising volume.

Electronics, vendings, drugs, defense issues and selected specialties were in sufficient vogue to shore up many in the blue chip category except for motors and oil stocks which continued in the doldrums.

Volume rose along with the prices to 2,990,000 shares from 2,660,000 Monday.

Some of the big romance gainers included IBM up 8, Polaroid 9½, Universal Match 4, Vendo 3¼, American Home Products 4¾, Zenith 4⅜, Beckman 3⅛, Brunswick 2⅞, AMF 3⅛ and Chock Full O' Nuts 4.

The gain came in the face of a government report that the nation's balance of payments deficit widened considerably during the third quarter. Technicians, however, predicted the list would give ground reluctantly as the Dow-Jones industrial average approached the 600 level.

The autos failed to participate perhaps on news that inventories had attained record levels on Nov. 1 while oil investors learned from the president of Mobil Oil Co. that the "lush times" in the industry are over.

Kennecott dropped 1⅛ in a mixed copper section as traders responded to word the company may sell two South African gold subsidiaries at a considerable loss. Continental Steel, which boosted its dividend and declared an extra, gained 1¾. Avco lost a fraction on a report it was suspending operations in the appliance section of its Nashville plant.

"Glamor" Stocks Carry Load As Market Climbs

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "glamor" stocks proved worthy of their name Tuesday as the high-flyers carried a depressed stock market to a firm finish on rising volume.

Electronics, vendings, drugs, defense issues and selected specialties were in sufficient vogue to shore up many in the blue chip category except for motors and oil stocks which continued in the doldrums.

Volume rose along with the prices to 2,990,000 shares from 2,660,000 Monday.

Some of the big romance gainers included IBM up 8, Polaroid 9½, Universal Match 4, Vendo 3¼, American Home Products 4¾, Zenith 4⅜, Beckman 3⅛, Brunswick 2⅞, AMF 3⅛ and Chock Full O' Nuts 4.

The gain came in the face of a government report that the nation's balance of payments deficit widened considerably during the third quarter. Technicians, however, predicted the list would give ground reluctantly as the Dow-Jones industrial average approached the 600 level.

The autos failed to participate perhaps on news that inventories had attained record levels on Nov. 1 while oil investors learned from the president of Mobil Oil Co. that the "lush times" in the industry are over.

Kennecott dropped 1⅛ in a mixed copper section as traders responded to word the company may sell two South African gold subsidiaries at a considerable loss. Continental Steel, which boosted its dividend and declared an extra, gained 1¾. Avco lost a fraction on a report it was suspending operations in the appliance section of its Nashville plant.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

How To Shrink A Tall Girl With A Short Beau

Bending your tall self into an inverted S will never add an inch to HIS height . . . and it only shortens YOUR chances to hold his interest. So, if you tower a trifle over your husband or boy-friend, try these illusions, instead, to minimize the distance between you.

Choose your dress with an eye to cutting the appearance of great hight with horizotal lines. The long unbroken lines are what you should avoid — the straight chemise-style bodice, the over-long narrow skirt, the vertical stripes. (You should dodge these anyway if you are very slender as well as tall.)

Boleros and boxy jackets make you seem shorter. If your figure can take it, a full skirt worn with a wide belt is sure to break up that long line from head to toe . . . and draw attention, happily, to your small waisline.

Now if you are both tall and heavy-set, hew to diagonal off-center styling with diverting details such as closings and wide collars. These lines will be horizontal enough to keep you from resembling a skyscraper . . . but not enough to add apparent inches to your width.

Should you wear flat shoes? Only when the occasion calls for them. Otherwise, keep to your flattering and comfortable medium heels. Why let flats point out so pointedly to the man in your life that the disparity in height bothers you? Flats may quell YOUR psychological qualms . . . but they are so obvious they are likely to give HIM a complex.

Now, for absolute insurance against bringing your height to everyone's notice, raise up that rib cage and stand TALL. Snap those shoulders out of that sag, coax your chest out of that cave! Lift your head, straighten your neck, balance your weight evenly on both hips.

To remind you to be posture-proud of your height, wear the kind of foundation garments that will make it easy for you to keep a straight carriage. My ten-cent pamphlet, "Fifured For You," can help you to be properly fitted. With a stamped self-addressed envelope, just ask this newspaper to send one to you . . . and allow two weeks, please, for delivery.

What happens when you sacrifice good posture for the sake of a few inches? Your back humps, your tummy billows out, your distorted proportions make your clothes look as if they belonged to someone else. And double chins and sagging bustlines begin with sunken chests and hanging heads.

Of all tall girls, you can least afford to slump . . . for you have someone to please who likes you just the way you are.

Secrets Of Charm

How To Shrink A Tall Girl With A Short Beau

Bending your tall self into an inverted S will never add an inch to HIS height . . . and it only shortens YOUR chances to hold his interest. So, if you tower a trifle over your husband or boyfriend, try these illusions, instead, to minimize the distance between you.

Choose your dress with an eye to cutting the appearance of great hight with horizotal lines. The long unbroken lines are what you should avoid — the straight chemise-style bodice, the overlong narrow skirt, the vertical stripes. (You should dodge these anyway if you are very slender as well as tall.)

Boleros and boxy jackets make you seem shorter. If your figure can take it, a full skirt worn with a wide belt is sure to break up that long line from head to toe . . . and draw attention, happily, to your small waisline.

Now if you are both tall and heavy-set, hew to diagonal off-center styling with diverting details such as closings and wide collars. These lines will be horizontal enough to keep you from resembling a skyscraper . . . but not enough to add apparent inches to your width.

Should you wear flat shoes? Only when the occasion calls for them. Otherwise, keep to your flattering and comfortable medium heels. Why let flats point out so pointedly to the man in your life that the disparity in height bothers you? Flats may quell YOUR psychological qualms . . . but they are so obvious they are likely to give HIM a complex.

Now, for absolute insurance against bringing your height to everyone's notice, raise up that rib cage and stand TALL. Snap those shoulders out of that sag, coax your chest out of that cave! Lift your head, straighten your neck, balance your weight evenly on both hips.

To remind you to be posture-proud of your height, wear the kind of foundation garments that will make it easy for you to keep a straight carriage. My ten-cent pamphlet, "Fifured For You," can help you to be properly fitted. With a stamped self-addressed envelope, just ask this newspaper to send one to you . . . and allow two weeks, please, for delivery.

What happens when you sacrifice good posture for the sake of a few inches? Your back humps, your tummy billows out, your distorted proportions make your clothes look as if they belonged to someone else. And double chins and sagging bustlines begin with sunken chests and hanging heads.

Of all tall girls, you can least afford to slump . . . for you have someone to please who likes you just the way you are.

Three other Siple cows were in the top 10 butterfat producers for last month and his herd had the highest average in October with 1,022 pounds of milk and 35.1 pounds of butterfat per cow. His other good producers placed fifth, ninth and 10th on the select list.

In second place among the top butterfat producers in October was a registered Holstein named Roadke owned by J. M. Kuykendall, also of Keyser. His best cow had 93 pounds of butterfat in 2,270 pounds of October milk. Mr. Kuykendall also had the sixth best producer in October.

Two other herds rounded out the top 10 producers. W. A. Moore of Mt. Savage had cows placing third, fourth and eighth in the select roll. His best was a grade Holstein named Dot, who had 77 pounds of butterfat in 1,870 pounds of milk.

Charles Brooke and Son, also of Keyser, had the seventh best butterfat producer in October.

Piedmont Club Is Raided By W. Va. Police

Man Is Arrested For Taking $166

A Piedmont, W. Va., man has been charged with the larceny of $166 from the barroom of Kelly-Mansfield Post 52, American Legion, which was also raided late Sunday night by authorities.

Nine men who were arrested on a gambling charge during the raid on Sunday about 10:30 p. m. forfeited bond of $32 each yesterday afternoon when they failed to appear for a hearing before Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle in Keyser.

Ollie W. Green of Piedmont, bartender on duty at the time of the raid, posted bond of $500 pending a hearing Saturday at 10 a. m. before Miss Bazzle, who said he has been charged with illegal possession of liquor on the premises. Authorities said whisky and tip boards were confiscated during Sunday's raid.

Faces Theft Charge

Amnon W. Flick Jr., about 32, of Child's Avenue, Piedmont, was arrested by police who charged him with the grand larceny of $166 from the barroom late Saturday night or early Sunday morning after the bar closed.

Bond was set at $1,000 pending action of the grand jury of the January term of Mineral County Circuit Court. He posted bond and was released from the county jail.

West Virginia State Trooper Robert B. Noechel said Flick apparently hid in the building until it closed and left the building by breaking the bottom of the barroom door, escaping through a second story window and sliding down a drain pipe.

Footprints Are Found

Flick was reported to have been the last one seen on the premises prior to closing time. Footprints found behind the bar where the money was taken and prints elsewhere in the building led to his arrest.

The larceny was discovered on Sunday when William Payton, one of the bartenders, opened the barroom for business that day.

Others participating in the raid besides Trooper Noechel were Sheriff W. O. Mott, Charles Spiker, police of Piedmont, Officers Robert Mongold and E. E. Spiker.

New Road Opened To Traffic

Few motorists cruising over this nearly completed stretch of Route 36 between Corriganville and Barrelville will guess that it was considered, only a few years ago, one of the most treacherous roads in Allegany County. This view of the road was taken at Barrelville looking toward Cumberland. The bridge to the left was built over Jennings Run, which was rerouted about two-thirds of the way, to allow sweeping curves to replace a tortuous route. The road was opened by the State Roads Commission last Thursday after surfacing was completed. Equipment seen here is being used for such final tasks as grading and seeding.

School Board Reaffirms Open Policy

Webster Invited To Dec. 2 Meeting

The Allegany County Board of Education yesterday reaffirmed its policy to discuss student records with parents.

A motion to that effect was adopted unanimously by the four board members present at yesterday's monthly meeting. Kenneth R. Malcolm of Westernport, one of the board members, was absent yesterday.

This reaffirmation stand was taken by the school board after Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster informed the board that he had been requested by State Senator Charles M. See to meet with him and the members of the County Delegation in the House of Delegates on Friday, December 2, to discuss a particular type of record kept concerning pupils who are not taking full advantage of their educational opportunities.

Policy To Continue

Yesterday's school board motion pointed out that it has always been the policy of the board to discuss student records with interested parents, and will continue to be.

Robert H. Herboldsheimer, a former Mt. Savage School teacher who lives at 638 Fairview Avenue, discussed these forms at some length Monday night at the Court House with Senator See and the members of the County Delegation.

Mr. Herboldsheimer contended that information on these forms, introduced in Maryland in 1957 by Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, often is not obtained from parents and that parents have been denied the right to see such forms.

The only case he cited was a matter in Juvenile Court in which then Magistrate Fred H. Anderson said that he had no right to show the form to a parent in his court.

Practice Approved

Permission was granted to two basketball teams to practice once a week in high school gymnasiums. A Westernport independent basketball team was given permission to use the Bruce High School gymnasium once a week for practice. A similar authority was given to the team from St. Patrick's School in Mt. Savage to use the high school gym there once each week.

The school board approved the payment of bills aggregating $47,079.27.

Concluding the meeting was a discussion of school building needs in the county which are accentuated by the overcrowded conditions at both Allegany and Fort Hill high schools.

Attending yesterday's meeting with Mr. Webster were J. Goodloe Jackson, board president; Mrs. Albert C. Cook, Mrs. Richard Winer and T. Donald Shires and Robert MacDonald Bruce, board attorney.

Police Believe 5 Escapees Are In Stolen Auto

Planes Join In Search

Four of the five inmates who fled Monday from the State Correctional Institution at Huntingdon, Pa., were believed to be cornered by authorities last night in a wooded area above Martinsburg, Pa.

Authorities surmise the men may have been traveling in a car stolen from an auto dealer in Saxton.

Yesterday a ground posse was being assisted by helicopters and Air Force planes which were conducting a search from the air for the five men, described by police as being "dangerous and desperate."

Authorities at the Bedford barracks said they are "checking out everything" and have been receiving a large number of telephone calls from residents who believe they may have seen the men.

Car Described

They said the five fugitives may possibly be traveling in a car stolen from Saxton. It is a 1957 Chevrolet hardtop four-door sedan with a light blue bottom and grey top. The authorities said the Pennsylvania license tag ranges from number A5504D to A5513D.

State Police at Bedford said every available man from that area has been assigned to the searching party.

The five, including Scotty Robinette, 32, of RD 2, Everett, broke out of the prison in a garbage truck after fellow inmates had buried them under piles of refuse.

When the truck reached a dumping area two miles away, the escapers overpowered a guard and a trusty, bound them and threw them over a 100-foot embankment before stealing the truck.

The garbage truck later was found abandoned in Bedford County where searchers spotted footprints leading into a mountainous area.

Airplanes Used

State Police Capt. Singleton Shaffer of Troop C at Hollidaysburg, in charge of the manhunt, called for Air Force planes yesterday in belief the fugitives were somewhere on rugged Tussey Mountain, between Huntingdon and Altoona.

Authorities feared that the men would be in need of food and would not hesitate to raid any of the numerous isolated mountain farm homes in the district. The hunted men were known to be carrying home-made knives.

The search was joined late Monday by National Guardsmen and Army Reservists from nearby communities as well as by municipal police. Bloodhounds picked up the fugitives' trail for a time but because of poor tracking conditions lost the scent before sundown.

Prison officials identified the escapers as Robinette; Raymond Wade, 36, Washington, Pa.; Norman Keeler, 25, Farrell; Donald Davidson, 23, Baden, and Robert Harn, 32, Eighty-Four, Pa. All were serving time for charges ranging from forgery to armed robbery.

Appointment Plan Being Worked Out For Clinics

Plans are being worked out by the Allegany County Health Department to place city baby clinic attendance on an appointment basis only.

The plan was announced in the current Allegany County Health Newsletter "in view of the tremendous overcrowding in our city baby clinics."

Appointments for the clinics will be made only by the nurse for the patients in her district, the bulletin said, adding that the complete transition will take several months.

"It is expected," the Newsletter said, "that this may be an inconvenience to some of our clinic clientele, many of whom . . . may present themselves as walk-ins, and who will have to be rescheduled for a . . . nursing health conference to discuss the kind of service wanted . . . or whether the patient should be referred back to the private physician as a more desirable arrangement."

The newsletter also noted that children with fever should not be taken to well baby clinics in the county, due to the danger of spreading a communicable disease, adding:

"Plain sniffles without fever does not preclude a clinic visit."

Flying Group To Meet Here Tomorrow

A high frequency radio range and improved facilities for learning weather information for pilots at the Municipal Airport will be discussed tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. during a meeting of the Cumberland Flying Association.

Some time ago letters were sent to Senator J. Glenn Beall by Mayor J. Edwin Keech, Lewis J. Ort and the association in efforts to get a TVOR — high frequency radio range — and a toll-free line to Martinsburg where weather information would be obtained.

The letters requested the senator to intercede with the FAA in getting the improved facilities for pilots of the area. It was pointed out the federal government provides free service if there are enough planes in the area.

At the present time, Mr. Ort said, there are about 40 or 50 planes which use the local airport facilities. They include company planes and private planes.

During Thursday's meeting, Edward Robson, president of the association, will discuss carburetor ice. Films will be shown.

Plans will be discussed for a breakfast flight in which local pilots will fly to another port in the area where breakfast will be served.

Welfare Program Revised

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Department of Public Welfare announced Tuesday it is revising its aid to dependent children program in Baltimore City and Allegany and Somerset counties.

A two-year pilot program is planned for these areas in an effort to cut down fraud and remove many persons from the relief rolls.

Thomas J. S. Waxter, State welfare director, said social workers taking part in the project will be assigned one-half as many cases as normal in order to assist dependent families back to "more responsible living and back to self support in some instances."

The program will include a supervisor, a clerk and four caseworkers in Baltimore City, three workers in Allegany County and one in Somerset.

Each social worker will have a caseload of about 35 families. They will go into homes of those receiving aid to dependent children and give lessons in how to keep the living quarters clean, how to buy food within the welfare budget, how to prepare the food and how to keep the children healthy.

The department has included in its 1961 budget an additional $12,000 to hire special workers.

"The emphasis on aid to dependent children since its inception has been the verification of eligibility," Waxter said. "We should like to focus more attention on rehabilitation while at the same time being as cautious as possible about need."

FAA Probing Plane Crash Near Elkins

Pilot's Body Found Along Mountainside

Federal Aviation Agency officials at Charleston, W. Va., yesterday began investigating an airplane crash Sunday night in Pendleton County which claimed the lives of two Maryland men.

The crushed and burned body of Nelson P. Jackson, 49, of Severna Park, retired Air Force colonel, was found yesterday in the plane wreckage on a snow-covered mountainside near Spruce Knob about 40 miles southeast of Elkins.

His companion, Roger F. Bell of Epping Forest, was found dead Monday on a rural road near the crash scene. Bell, a passenger in the single-engine L17 Navion, was burned over 60 to 70 per cent of his body. He apparently tried to walk through the rugged mountain area for help.

About 50 members of the Civil Air Patrol joined West Virginia State Police and others in the search for the plane, reported missing Sunday while on a flight from Rose Valley, Md., to New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Freezing weather and a half-foot of snow hindered search operations in one of the most rugged areas in the East.

Jackson, World War II air hero decorated 19 times, and Bell, left Rose Valley Sunday night in a light plane owned by the Pentagon Aero Club.

At the time of his death Jackson represented the Joy Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh. He was the father of three sons and two daughters.

Bell, formerly associated with Litton Industries, Inc., of Rockville, was the father of one child.

Two Youths Sentenced In Car Theft

Tried To Elude Police In Chase

Two Frostburg area teen-agers who stole a car last week and traveled at high rates of speed to elude police were ordered committed to the Maryland Training School for Boys yesterday morning at a hearing in Juvenile Court.

A 15-year-old boy from the Frostburg area who also was involved in the case was found guilty of being a delinquent minor and was placed on probation for two years by Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin.

The two youths ordered to the training school, Robert W. Carder, 15, and Alvin E. Hardin, 16, RFD 1, Frostburg, also were found guilty of two motor vehicle charges by Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt at a hearing in Trial Magistrate Court.

Magistrate Weatherholt found each youth guilty of operating a vehicle without a license, and reckless driving. He imposed a $100 fine on each count, but suspended the fines which totaled $400.

Tfc. Joseph V. Stakem arrested Harden after the youth wrecked the stolen car in the vicinity of Valley High School in Lonaconing.

State Police first received a call from a service station attendant at McCoole who said the three boys got some gas and failed to pay for it.

Tfc. Stakem said he spotted the stolen vehicle near Lonaconing, and followed it at a high rate of speed through Lonaconing. He testified yesterday he fired a shot in the air and the young driver then struck several mail boxes, ran off the road and wrecked.

The car was stolen from Edward W. Shannon, RFD 3, Frostburg, while it was parked on a parking lot in Frostburg.

Murder Trial Opens In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — A state's attorney claimed Tuesday that Charles Davis, 23, of Baltimore, beat to death an unemployed trucker last August in hopes of robbing him for "wine money."

Asst. State's Atty. E. Thomas Maxwell Jr. made the remarks in his opening statement to a Criminal Court jury of nine men and three women who were chosen to hear the murder trial.

Davis, a Negro, is charged with robbing Franklin Creamer, 49, of $21 and a wrist watch and beating him to death with a toy pistol.

Also charged in the Aug. 14 attack at Frederick Avenue and Hilton Street is James P. Ewell, an 18-year-old Baltimore Negro. Authorities said Ewell will be tried later. Both Davis and Ewell pleaded innocent.

Maxwell said Creamer, the father of five, was the first person to come along as Davis and Ewell lay in wait.

Creamer and two of his children had been living with his sister in Baltimore since last May when he lost his job as a trucker. Creamer's wife, Geraldine, and three other children live with her parents Mr. and Mrs. George R. Owings, in Cumberland. She and all five children attended the trial.

County Gets $43,937 In October Taxes

October receipts of $43,937.20 in 1960 county taxes bring to $3,456,647.89 the amount collected since June 1 by Allegany County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff and his deputies.

That total represents 101.3 per cent of the $3,413,000 the county commissioners estimated would be received during the entire year when the tax rate of $2.20 on each $100 of assessed valuation was set last April 19. There still are seven months remaining before the 1961 bills are distributed about June 1, 1961.

October collections included $28,362.68 in real estate and personal property taxes, $83.88 on house trailers, $50 in trailer arrival taxes, $701.83 in semi-annual assessments on property substantially complete by July 1 and $14,738.81 from corporations.

Last month's collections did not quite measure up to the $50,850.65 received during September, the first month in which interest was charged on county taxes.

September totals included $43,068.65 in real estate and personal property taxes, $3,621 in semi-annual assessments, $528.23 from house trailers, $20 in trailer arrival taxes and $3,611.77 from corporations.

These totals are well below the level of collections in the summer months of June, July and August, when a discount was allowed on county taxes.

In June, when a five per cent discount was available on county taxes, the total collected by Mr. Orndorff and his deputies was $3,093,337.68. In July, collections dropped to $131,849.02, when a four per cent discount was allowed. In August, tax receipts added up to $136,673.34 when a three per cent discount was credited.

State Parks Are Being Outgrown

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Marylands' park system, already greatly overtaxed, may become even more so before there's any relief, according to Joseph Kaylor, director of forests and parks.

Kaylor said Tuesday the park system, which can accommodate a maximum of about a million and a half people, was visited by 4,344,965 during the 1960 season.

The parks chief said that this represented an increase of almost three million persons over five years ago. Kaylor said the 1955 parks attendance totaled 1,557,955.

Kaylor estimated that up to nine million persons may visit Maryland's 14 parks next year. "Based on a population of three million, we estimate that three times the population are potential users," he said.

"We've got about one-third of the land we need for the future, and existing facilities plus those in development and others planned would take care of about two million persons."

He termed these facilities grossly inadequate.

"We took care of four million people last season but very unsatisfactorily," Kaylor said.

New Zealander Visits Area

C. A. Cowie, a sanitary engineer with the Ministry of Public Health in New Zealand, will conclude a two-day visit to this area today.

Mr. Cowie and his wife arrived in Cumberland about noon yesterday. Julian G. Patrick of Westernport met them here and directed them on a tour of the flood control project, sewage treatment plant and the water filtration plant here.

This morning they will visit Westernport and see the waste treatment plant there which serves the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company at Luke and the Tri-Towns of Westernport, Luke and Piedmont. He also will inspect the Savage River Dam.

Finally, they will visit the Hampshire County seat of Romney, W. Va., to inspect the only complete sewage treatment plant and water filtration plant in West Virginia's portion of the Potomac River Basin. From Romney they will return to Washington.

The Allegany County Board of Education yesterday reaffirmed its policy to discuss student records with parents.

A motion to that effect was adopted unanimously by the four board members present at yesterday's monthly meeting. Kenneth R. Malcolm of Westernport, one of the board members, was absent yesterday.

This reaffirmation stand was taken by the school board after Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster informed the board that he had been requested by State Senator Charles M. See to meet with him and the members of the County Delegation in the House of Delegates on Friday, December 2, to discuss a particular type of record kept concerning pupils who are not taking full advantage of their educational opportunities.

Policy To Continue

Yesterday's school board motion pointed out that it has always been the policy of the board to discuss student records with interested parents, and will continue to be.

Robert H. Herboldsheimer, a former Mt. Savage School teacher who lives at 638 Fairview Avenue, discussed these forms at some length Monday night at the Court House with Senator See and the members of the County Delegation.

Mr. Herboldsheimer contended that information on these forms, introduced in Maryland in 1957 by Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, often is not obtained from parents and that parents have been denied the right to see such forms.

The only case he cited was a matter in Juvenile Court in which then Magistrate Fred H. Anderson said that he had no right to show the form to a parent in his court.

Practice Approved

Permission was granted to two basketball teams to practice once a week in high school gymnasiums. A Westernport independent basketball team was given permission to use the Bruce High School gymnasium once a week for practice. A similar authority was given to the team from St. Patrick's School in Mt. Savage to use the high school gym there once each week.

The school board approved the payment of bills aggregating $47,079.27.

Concluding the meeting was a discussion of school building needs in the county which are accentuated by the overcrowded conditions at both Allegany and Fort Hill high schools.

Attending yesterday's meeting with Mr. Webster were J. Goodloe Jackson, board president; Mrs. Albert C. Cook, Mrs. Richard Winer and T. Donald Shires and Robert MacDonald Bruce, board attorney.

Police Believe 5 Escapees Are In Stolen Auto

Planes Join In Search

Four of the five inmates who fled Monday from the State Correctional Institution at Huntingdon, Pa., were believed to be cornered by authorities last night in a wooded area above Martinsburg, Pa.

Authorities surmise the men may have been traveling in a car stolen from an auto dealer in Saxton.

Yesterday a ground posse was being assisted by helicopters and Air Force planes which were conducting a search from the air for the five men, described by police as being "dangerous and desperate."

Authorities at the Bedford barracks said they are "checking out everything" and have been receiving a large number of telephone calls from residents who believe they may have seen the men.

Car Described

They said the five fugitives may possibly be traveling in a car stolen from Saxton. It is a 1957 Chevrolet hardtop four-door sedan with a light blue bottom and grey top. The authorities said the Pennsylvania license tag ranges from number A5504D to A5513D.

State Police at Bedford said every available man from that area has been assigned to the searching party.

The five, including Scotty Robinette, 32, of RD 2, Everett, broke out of the prison in a garbage truck after fellow inmates had buried them under piles of refuse.

When the truck reached a dumping area two miles away, the escapers overpowered a guard and a trusty, bound them and threw them over a 100-foot embankment before stealing the truck.

The garbage truck later was found abandoned in Bedford County where searchers spotted footprints leading into a mountainous area.

Airplanes Used

State Police Capt. Singleton Shaffer of Troop C at Hollidaysburg, in charge of the manhunt, called for Air Force planes yesterday in belief the fugitives were somewhere on rugged Tussey Mountain, between Huntingdon and Altoona.

Authorities feared that the men would be in need of food and would not hesitate to raid any of the numerous isolated mountain farm homes in the district. The hunted men were known to be carrying home-made knives.

The search was joined late Monday by National Guardsmen and Army Reservists from nearby communities as well as by municipal police. Bloodhounds picked up the fugitives' trail for a time but because of poor tracking conditions lost the scent before sundown.

Prison officials identified the escapers as Robinette; Raymond Wade, 36, Washington, Pa.; Norman Keeler, 25, Farrell; Donald Davidson, 23, Baden, and Robert Harn, 32, Eighty-Four, Pa. All were serving time for charges ranging from forgery to armed robbery.

Appointment Plan Being Worked Out For Clinics

Plans are being worked out by the Allegany County Health Department to place city baby clinic attendance on an appointment basis only.

The plan was announced in the current Allegany County Health Newsletter "in view of the tremendous overcrowding in our city baby clinics."

Appointments for the clinics will be made only by the nurse for the patients in her district, the bulletin said, adding that the complete transition will take several months.

"It is expected," the Newsletter said, "that this may be an inconvenience to some of our clinic clientele, many of whom . . . may present themselves as walk-ins, and who will have to be rescheduled for a . . . nursing health conference to discuss the kind of service wanted . . . or whether the patient should be referred back to the private physician as a more desirable arrangement."

The newsletter also noted that children with fever should not be taken to well baby clinics in the county, due to the danger of spreading a communicable disease, adding:

"Plain sniffles without fever does not preclude a clinic visit."

Flying Group To Meet Here Tomorrow

A high frequency radio range and improved facilities for learning weather information for pilots at the Municipal Airport will be discussed tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. during a meeting of the Cumberland Flying Association.

Some time ago letters were sent to Senator J. Glenn Beall by Mayor J. Edwin Keech, Lewis J. Ort and the association in efforts to get a TVOR — high frequency radio range — and a toll-free line to Martinsburg where weather information would be obtained.

The letters requested the senator to intercede with the FAA in getting the improved facilities for pilots of the area. It was pointed out the federal government provides free service if there are enough planes in the area.

At the present time, Mr. Ort said, there are about 40 or 50 planes which use the local airport facilities. They include company planes and private planes.

During Thursday's meeting, Edward Robson, president of the association, will discuss carburetor ice. Films will be shown.

Plans will be discussed for a breakfast flight in which local pilots will fly to another port in the area where breakfast will be served.

Welfare Program Revised

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Department of Public Welfare announced Tuesday it is revising its aid to dependent children program in Baltimore City and Allegany and Somerset counties.

A two-year pilot program is planned for these areas in an effort to cut down fraud and remove many persons from the relief rolls.

Thomas J. S. Waxter, State welfare director, said social workers taking part in the project will be assigned one-half as many cases as normal in order to assist dependent families back to "more responsible living and back to self support in some instances."

The program will include a supervisor, a clerk and four caseworkers in Baltimore City, three workers in Allegany County and one in Somerset.

Each social worker will have a caseload of about 35 families. They will go into homes of those receiving aid to dependent children and give lessons in how to keep the living quarters clean, how to buy food within the welfare budget, how to prepare the food and how to keep the children healthy.

The department has included in its 1961 budget an additional $12,000 to hire special workers.

"The emphasis on aid to dependent children since its inception has been the verification of eligibility," Waxter said. "We should like to focus more attention on rehabilitation while at the same time being as cautious as possible about need."

FAA Probing Plane Crash Near Elkins

Pilot's Body Found Along Mountainside

Federal Aviation Agency officials at Charleston, W. Va., yesterday began investigating an airplane crash Sunday night in Pendleton County which claimed the lives of two Maryland men.

The crushed and burned body of Nelson P. Jackson, 49, of Severna Park, retired Air Force colonel, was found yesterday in the plane wreckage on a snow-covered mountainside near Spruce Knob about 40 miles southeast of Elkins.

His companion, Roger F. Bell of Epping Forest, was found dead Monday on a rural road near the crash scene. Bell, a passenger in the single-engine L17 Navion, was burned over 60 to 70 per cent of his body. He apparently tried to walk through the rugged mountain area for help.

About 50 members of the Civil Air Patrol joined West Virginia State Police and others in the search for the plane, reported missing Sunday while on a flight from Rose Valley, Md., to New Philadelphia, Ohio.

Freezing weather and a half-foot of snow hindered search operations in one of the most rugged areas in the East.

Jackson, World War II air hero decorated 19 times, and Bell, left Rose Valley Sunday night in a light plane owned by the Pentagon Aero Club.

At the time of his death Jackson represented the Joy Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh. He was the father of three sons and two daughters.

Bell, formerly associated with Litton Industries, Inc., of Rockville, was the father of one child.

Two Youths Sentenced In Car Theft

Tried To Elude Police In Chase

Two Frostburg area teen-agers who stole a car last week and traveled at high rates of speed to elude police were ordered committed to the Maryland Training School for Boys yesterday morning at a hearing in Juvenile Court.

A 15-year-old boy from the Frostburg area who also was involved in the case was found guilty of being a delinquent minor and was placed on probation for two years by Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin.

The two youths ordered to the training school, Robert W. Carder, 15, and Alvin E. Hardin, 16, RFD 1, Frostburg, also were found guilty of two motor vehicle charges by Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt at a hearing in Trial Magistrate Court.

Magistrate Weatherholt found each youth guilty of operating a vehicle without a license, and reckless driving. He imposed a $100 fine on each count, but suspended the fines which totaled $400.

Tfc. Joseph V. Stakem arrested Harden after the youth wrecked the stolen car in the vicinity of Valley High School in Lonaconing.

State Police first received a call from a service station attendant at McCoole who said the three boys got some gas and failed to pay for it.

Tfc. Stakem said he spotted the stolen vehicle near Lonaconing, and followed it at a high rate of speed through Lonaconing. He testified yesterday he fired a shot in the air and the young driver then struck several mail boxes, ran off the road and wrecked.

The car was stolen from Edward W. Shannon, RFD 3, Frostburg, while it was parked on a parking lot in Frostburg.

Murder Trial Opens In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — A state's attorney claimed Tuesday that Charles Davis, 23, of Baltimore, beat to death an unemployed trucker last August in hopes of robbing him for "wine money."

Asst. State's Atty. E. Thomas Maxwell Jr. made the remarks in his opening statement to a Criminal Court jury of nine men and three women who were chosen to hear the murder trial.

Davis, a Negro, is charged with robbing Franklin Creamer, 49, of $21 and a wrist watch and beating him to death with a toy pistol.

Also charged in the Aug. 14 attack at Frederick Avenue and Hilton Street is James P. Ewell, an 18-year-old Baltimore Negro. Authorities said Ewell will be tried later. Both Davis and Ewell pleaded innocent.

Maxwell said Creamer, the father of five, was the first person to come along as Davis and Ewell lay in wait.

Creamer and two of his children had been living with his sister in Baltimore since last May when he lost his job as a trucker. Creamer's wife, Geraldine, and three other children live with her parents Mr. and Mrs. George R. Owings, in Cumberland. She and all five children attended the trial.

County Gets $43,937 In October Taxes

October receipts of $43,937.20 in 1960 county taxes bring to $3,456,647.89 the amount collected since June 1 by Allegany County Tax Collector William B. Orndorff and his deputies.

That total represents 101.3 per cent of the $3,413,000 the county commissioners estimated would be received during the entire year when the tax rate of $2.20 on each $100 of assessed valuation was set last April 19. There still are seven months remaining before the 1961 bills are distributed about June 1, 1961.

October collections included $28,362.68 in real estate and personal property taxes, $83.88 on house trailers, $50 in trailer arrival taxes, $701.83 in semi-annual assessments on property substantially complete by July 1 and $14,738.81 from corporations.

Last month's collections did not quite measure up to the $50,850.65 received during September, the first month in which interest was charged on county taxes.

September totals included $43,068.65 in real estate and personal property taxes, $3,621 in semi-annual assessments, $528.23 from house trailers, $20 in trailer arrival taxes and $3,611.77 from corporations.

These totals are well below the level of collections in the summer months of June, July and August, when a discount was allowed on county taxes.

In June, when a five per cent discount was available on county taxes, the total collected by Mr. Orndorff and his deputies was $3,093,337.68. In July, collections dropped to $131,849.02, when a four per cent discount was allowed. In August, tax receipts added up to $136,673.34 when a three per cent discount was credited.

State Parks Are Being Outgrown

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Marylands' park system, already greatly overtaxed, may become even more so before there's any relief, according to Joseph Kaylor, director of forests and parks.

Kaylor said Tuesday the park system, which can accommodate a maximum of about a million and a half people, was visited by 4,344,965 during the 1960 season.

The parks chief said that this represented an increase of almost three million persons over five years ago. Kaylor said the 1955 parks attendance totaled 1,557,955.

Kaylor estimated that up to nine million persons may visit Maryland's 14 parks next year. "Based on a population of three million, we estimate that three times the population are potential users," he said.

"We've got about one-third of the land we need for the future, and existing facilities plus those in development and others planned would take care of about two million persons."

He termed these facilities grossly inadequate.

"We took care of four million people last season but very unsatisfactorily," Kaylor said.

Three Western Maryland sanitarians will attend a meeting planned in Baltimore Thursday by the State Health Department for Environmental Hygiene personnel.

J. Byron Dowling and Gaylord Brooks, Allegany County sanitarians, and Charlie Miller, Garrett County sanitarian, will attend.

The program will open with a session on waste stabilization lagoons, which may be considered in solving sewage treatment problems of smaller communities of this county.

Other topics will be hospital services activities, food personnel training and auxiliary inspection, and legal aspects of environmental health.
